Poetry.
For the Patriot.
The Whisper of the Pine.
Hush! we are in the dim forest,
And the oak with its fragrant dream,
Your arms in endless measure,
For the vanished pine-tree year.

Gov. Butler's Message.

This is an unusually interesting and suggestive public document. It deals with the great interests of the state in a way which certainly challenges respect, whether or not the views propounded be sanctioned by approval. As Gen. Butler has for several years been the keener and severest of critics upon the management of our great public institutions, it was natural that his inaugural message should be looked forward to with a great deal of interest. This popular expectation the Governor, by his full and original discussion of important state themes, has fairly met. No one can accuse him of ignoring any important question of interest to the Commonwealth, or of passing over with smooth platitudes the really great issues he affects to discuss.

Space would not admit of passing in review at this time the opinions which the Governor in this message announces, or of fairly considering the various recommendations which he deems it proper to address to the Legislature.

His opinion with respect to the desirability of the abolition of the poll-tax as a pre-requisite to the exercise of the right to vote is well known, and the argument which he urges in favor of such abolition is probably one of the most persuasive that have been made on that side of the question. But with regard to all the topics of the message, the Governor speaks with great originality and thoughtfulness, and though his radical recommendations will evoke a warm and active dissent in many quarters, and his unsparing criticism upon what he considers the extravagance in the management of our charitable institutions, will awaken a keen opposition. We are persuaded that the general public will find much in the message to commend.

TAKEN BY SURPRISE. Last Saturday evening Mr. William L. Qualey was completely taken by surprise by some forty or more of his friends from Cambridge, Boston, Braintree and Quincy. The Mount Auburn Lodge of Odd Fellows, of which organization Mr. Qualey is a highly-respected member, were the prime movers on this occasion, and they carried out their plans in a very satisfactory manner.

An hour or two was enjoyed in a pleasant manner in games, when the party was invited to partake of an excellent collation, consisting of cake, fruit, ice-cream and fruit. Having partaken of this feast of good things, one of the brothers from Cambridge addressed Mr. Qualey in a pleasing and happy manner, concluding his remarks by presenting him, in behalf of the brethren of Mount Auburn Lodge, with an elegant gold-banded watch. Mr. Qualey was more than surprised at the turn of affairs, but quickly recovering himself, responded in a very felicitous manner, thanking his brothers for their testimonial of esteem.

This surprise had hardly been concluded, when still another awaited the family. This time it was Mr. Qualey's better half, who was completely surprised when presented with a handsome silver cake-basket, which was a present to her from her friends in Boston. Although greatly surprised, she expressed her thanks, and accepted the gift in a graceful manner. The evening was pleasantly enjoyed, and the company were entertained with some excellent music, both vocal and instrumental, and before the midnight hour the company had their friends good night, and returned to their homes.

PEOPLE'S COURSE. After the holidays the entertainments of this course begin again lively. This evening, amusement of a rich and entirely innocent sort will be afforded. Mr. Warren G. Richards, a "facial and vocal humorist" of some note will give his mirthful entertainment, which he has entitled "Funny Folks," in which he will impersonate a number of popular and comical characters. He will be assisted by Miss Gertrude White a singer of excellence, and by Mr. J. Frank Donahoe, a well-known pianist and organist of Boston. The committee have arranged to secure an orderly entrance to the hall, and they would call attention to the following votes passed by them: That the number to be admitted to the hall be strictly limited to 500; that tickets be sold at stores up to seven o'clock Saturday night, and after then to be sold only at the hall; that tickets are good only for the entertainment for which they are sold.

THE NEW CHURCH. The work on the new Universalist Church in Quincy, progressing quite rapidly. The vestry, ladies' parlor, kitchen, etc., have been lathed and plastered, and in a few weeks will be ready for occupancy. The vestry is quite large, airy and pleasant, quite together with the adjoining rooms, will fill a want long felt by this society.

The bell which has been used by the society for the past fifty years, and is much prized for its clear and sweet sound, was sent to Boston this week for a new iron yoke; the old wooden frame was rotten and unfit to accompany it to the new church.

CITIZEN'S GAS-LIGHT CO. The annual meeting of the stockholders of this company will be held at the office of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, on Thursday next. The company is now in an excellent and prosperous condition. Since the reduction last summer in the price of gas from five mills to three mills on a thousand cubic feet, the consumption has increased rapidly, that there is a demand for all the gas that can be manufactured. Next spring we learn that the Company intends to enlarge its works, and will probably erect a steam pipe to Wollaston, and endeavor to supply the town in a good and satisfactory manner. The gas is of an excellent quality and gives general satisfaction.

UNFORTUNATE. We notice among the list of 326 individuals, firms and corporations having stocks in the Pacific Bank, Boston, quite a number are from Quincy and vicinity. Among the large holders of stock we notice the name of Mr. Geo. H. Frost, of Newburyport, 225 shares. The stockholders have not only lost all they have put into this bank, but have been heavily assessed.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. John O. Holden is recovering from his serious indisposition, and hope soon to see him at his place of business.

Brief Locals.

Mr. F. J. Fuller has a prime lot of canned-corn for sale.

William D. Webb returned home from his European trip on Monday last.

Next week will be observed as the week of prayer, at the Congregational Church.

The Selectmen invite all persons having demands against the town to present them this month.

The Rev. Mr. Norton will preach a sermon appropriate for the New Year to-morrow.

Will the funder of the gold breastpin at the Unitarian festival please leave it at this office.

Yesterday morning was the coldest of the season. The thermometer indicated five degrees above zero.

The Rev. D. M. Wilson will supply the Quincy Mass to-morrow. Services about 3.30.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the National Granite Bank will be held on Tuesday next, at 3 o'clock.

The J. Q. Adams Chemical Engine Company held its first annual ball at the Town Hall, last evening. A pleasant time was enjoyed.

Those who wish to dance this winter by Harbison & Riley's music must go to Mr. Gurney's singing school and learn waltz time.

We would invite the reader's attention to the advertisement of oak wood, eagles, sleds and farming tools for sale by Mrs. Charles N. Baxter.

The horse belonging to Messrs. Whitney & Nash, which was badly injured about two weeks ago by being impaled on a fence, died on Tuesday.

There will be a conference of the Associated Charities on Tuesday, January 9th, at 3 P. M. in the School Committee's room, Town Hall building.

We have received numerous New Year calls this week. Many of our visitors have, with their hands, and kind words in their hearts.

The week of prayer will be observed as usual at the Congregational Church. Meetings will be held in the Chapel every evening until Saturday. A cordial welcome to all.

The Universalist Society will hold their thirty-sixth annual levee at the Town Hall on Thursday, the 22d of February. A fine dramatic entertainment is expected on that occasion.

All who wish to be good singers should attend Mr. Gurney's singing school. He is a nice teacher, and our young folks should improve this opportunity. At Faxon Hall, on Monday evening next, at 7 1/2 o'clock.

The Wollaston Ontario Society is giving "The Creation" in full sometime in April with the assistance of the best solo talent and orchestra accompaniment. Nearly all the choruses have been taken up at present.

Never have we enjoyed better winter weather than that which has been showered upon us during the past fortnight. For health, comfort and enjoyment never has "Old Prob." mixed up a more delightful dose at this season of the year.

A very pleasing entertainment will be given by members of the Universalist Society at Faxon Hall, on Wednesday evening next. The exercises will conclude with a laughable pantomime entitled, "Courtship under Difficulties."

Quincy has three Representatives to General Court this year, probably more than any other town in the State. They are all young men—George A. Barker, William N. Eaton and William G. A. Patten—who are capable of making their presence felt.

The first severe snow storm of the season commenced yesterday morning, before daylight, and continued up to the hour of our going to press—o'clock, P. M. Owing to the severe cold it did not accumulate very fast, and only four inches had fallen up to that hour.

The West Quincy Methodist Society and Sunday School had a very excellent New Year's festival at the vestry of their church on Monday evening last. One hundred and fifty or more took supper and participated in the festivities of the occasion. It was a gathering that will be remembered for a long time with pleasure.

Rev. R. T. Sawyer and lady received New Year calls on Monday last. A very large number of the parish including the Sunday School scholars, called at the parsonage during the day or evening, and had a delightful time. The school presented their parents with a handsome basket of flowers, which was very tastefully arranged at Col. Packard's greenhouse. The flowers were elegant, and their perfume scented the whole house.

The Boston Herald of Friday says: "The will of Nancy Maria Jones, of Quincy, wife of John O. Jones, which has been filed in probate at the office of the probate court in Boston, is a curious document. In the will she has entirely ignored her husband, making liberal bequests to several relatives, after which the residuum of her property is to be divided among the following societies: American Baptist Mission Society, American Baptist Tract Society, Northern Baptist Home Mission Society, and Massachusetts Baptist Charitable Society, all of Boston. By a codicil to the will, the husband is bequeathed all the household furniture, plate, etc., and all moneys except what may be deposited in savings banks."

DELEGATES. At a meeting of the Quincy Reform Club, held at Faxon Hall on Saturday evening last, the following delegates were elected to attend the twenty-fourth quarterly Reform Club Convention, to be held at Beverly on Wednesday next, the 10th instant: John D. Nutting, George Vezie, Henry Chubbuck, Frederick Souther, Thomas Kelly, Henry H. Faxon, Elbridge Joy.

THAYER ACADEMY. The second term of the sixth year of the Thayer Academy, at Braintree, commenced on Wednesday last, with sixty-one pupils, of that number there are thirteen from Quincy: Abigail C. Chamberlin, Daniel Costello, Everett S. Litchfield, Alice D. Spear, Adele E. Thayer, Gertrude Thayer, Mary P. Follett, Marion D. Mitchell, Rose L. Pinkham, William F. Smith, Abbie F. Thayer, Adelaide L. Walker and Harriet Quimby.

Quincy Point Items.

Sunday morning in the Christian Union Church, Rev. J. L. Harris preached his introductory sermon to a large congregation. His statement of what should be the relation between pastor and people was very clear, and seemed to meet the views of his parish. The praise meeting in the evening was well attended.

The Vulture Engine Company held a meeting Monday evening and voted to petition the Engineers to change the gong from the church to the engine house.

The Vulture started for Box 64 Wednesday afternoon, and went most to the centre.

The Quincy Point Temperance Association held a meeting Wednesday evening, with the largest audience of the season. Owing to previous engagements the Rev. Mr. Sawyer was unable to be present. Addresses were made by Rev. J. L. Harris and others.

The sociable of the Ladies' Aid Society will hold Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. J. L. Whitton. Quite a large number of people were present, and the time was passed very pleasantly in the manner customary upon such occasions.

At the Baptist Chapel last Sunday afternoon the pastor preached a sermon on the "harvest path," which, in an unusual degree, held the attention of his hearers. The evening meetings were largely attended, and the services were of a high order.

Those who wish to walk in a better way, Tuesday evening Mr. J. A. McElwain, of the Chardon Street Church, Boston, was present, and addressed a meeting.

Next week meetings will be held every evening except Saturday. The services will be of a high order.

CLAN MCGREGOR. At a regular meeting of Clan McGregor, held in Revere Hall, Dec. 27th, the following named gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing six months:

Chief, Joseph Walker. Vice Chief, David Law. Chaplain, Andrew Young. Secretary, Peter Kerr. Financial Secretary, John Wright. Treasurer, Alexander Mason. Sergeant at Arms, John Boyle. Inside Warden, Alexander Cheyne. Outside Warden, Alex. Booth. Examining Physician, Dr. Gordon.

UNFORTUNATE. We notice among the list of 326 individuals, firms and corporations having stocks in the Pacific Bank, Boston, quite a number are from Quincy and vicinity. Among the large holders of stock we notice the name of Mr. Geo. H. Frost, of Newburyport, 225 shares. The stockholders have not only lost all they have put into this bank, but have been heavily assessed.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. John O. Holden is recovering from his serious indisposition, and hope soon to see him at his place of business.

THE NEW CHURCH. The work on the new Universalist Church in Quincy, progressing quite rapidly. The vestry, ladies' parlor, kitchen, etc., have been lathed and plastered, and in a few weeks will be ready for occupancy. The vestry is quite large, airy and pleasant, quite together with the adjoining rooms, will fill a want long felt by this society.

The bell which has been used by the society for the past fifty years, and is much prized for its clear and sweet sound, was sent to Boston this week for a new iron yoke; the old wooden frame was rotten and unfit to accompany it to the new church.

CITIZEN'S GAS-LIGHT CO. The annual meeting of the stockholders of this company will be held at the office of the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, on Thursday next. The company is now in an excellent and prosperous condition. Since the reduction last summer in the price of gas from five mills to three mills on a thousand cubic feet, the consumption has increased rapidly, that there is a demand for all the gas that can be manufactured. Next spring we learn that the Company intends to enlarge its works, and will probably erect a steam pipe to Wollaston, and endeavor to supply the town in a good and satisfactory manner. The gas is of an excellent quality and gives general satisfaction.

Its Extraordinary Prevalence and Fatality.
As shown by the mortality reports from all
sections of the country, this often fatal
disease is rapidly increasing so that at the present time one-third of the entire mortality
of the country is attributed to pulmonary
diseases. Pneumonia is essentially a fever,
which especially effects the lungs. It is commonly attacks the lower lobe of the right lung. The low attacked is first "coughed" accompanied with blood. This is followed by it then becomes sited. This is a second stage. It is a very dangerous disease. It is in fatal cases suppurates takes place, this is consumption. The attack generally begins with a chill. No cure can be given. It avoiding it except, do not expose yourself to cold. It is the originator of the wonderful kidney and liver cure, has at last confessed to allow his consumption cure to be put upon the market. This is the consumption cure, which is a very valuable medicine, which is personally known. It is said to be the best remedy known for all pulmonary consumptions.

The Quincy Patriot.
SATURDAY, JAN. 6, 1883.
For the Patriot.
Drifting.
I've been drifting without an anchor,
For the past three years or more.
Every breeze my boat's sail filling,
Sweep me further from the shore.
But at length I saw a beacon,
In the far, unclouded west,
That they say will guide me truly
To the land of perfect rest.
So with hope I steer toward it,
Over the waters wild and dark,
Praying still in his great mercy,
Will support and guide my bark.
If at length I reach that haven,
Over on the other side,
Then I'll gladly say my anchor,
And for aye with him abide.
—Allen H. Day.

Farm and Garden.
Old-time Farmers.
Fifty years ago or more the farmers
were simply farmers and nothing more.
They raised nearly all the supplies for their own tables, and largely for their clothing, which was manufactured from the raw materials in their homes.
Wheat was much more generally grown than now, but not in sufficient quantities
to furnish bread for the household.
Flour was rarely bought by the barrel,
and barley, rye and Indian corn were extensively used. In those earlier days of bread was, with a large number of families, dignified with the name of
"cake," and considered a delicacy for use
on extraordinary occasions, when company was entertained. A story is still told in one of our old Buckingham county towns which illustrates this fact. A high-toned gentleman known as a "Square" called at a farmhouse one day on some business, and when he found himself in the kitchen, he was at the door, the good housewife, wishing to impress the visitor with the dignity and thrift of her family, said to him: "Square, you not stop and have some flour bread and butter?" thinking
it too late for him to accept her invitation. To her chagrin the doughty square replied: "Thank you, marm, I don't care if I do," and promptly dismounted and entered the house. The poor woman could only explain that for her surprise she found the flour bread
all out, and offered him the best she had, some Indian bannock. When a boy the writer had often seen in the house of a neighbor a string of these bannocks, eight or ten in number, set upon the tin of the fire in the house. Now the flour bread is considered as consisting of the liquid in which the red particles flow, and of those red particles. These have two functions. The white liquid carries the red particles, and is concerned in the nutritive operation of the blood, the red particles are the carriers of the oxygen from the lungs to the various

Glass Wedding.

Last Monday evening the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Pierce, Granite street, was the scene of a lively and enjoyable gathering of relatives and friends as being the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage. Guests began to arrive about 7.30, and at 8 o'clock nearly sixty persons were comfortably seated in their rooms to tender them a pleasant and enjoyable evening, who also brought with them many useful and ornamental presents, which greatly added to the surprise of both host and hostess.

Among the many useful and substantial articles, were a beautiful pair of vases, glass butter dish, a handsome cake basket, carver and fork, pair of silver spoons, hand glass, pitchfork, spoonholders, sugar bowls and a beautiful lamp; goblets, glass dishes and many other useful articles swelled the list to a large number, which occupied much space to display. The company soon engaged in various games, which were only interrupted by the announcement of refreshments, which an attempt to give in detail would end in a disastrous failure, as many of the rich viands which covered the heavily laden board. After supper games were again resumed, which continued until a late hour, when the pleasant and happy company took their departure for their respective homes.

Obituary.

Among the death notices this week will be found the name of Mr. Alonzo G. Davis, an old and highly respected citizen of West Quincy, who died at his residence on Wednesday. He had been in failing health for some time, but his death was rather unexpected. Mr. Davis was a member of Rural Lodge, St. Stephen's Chapter and the South Shore Commandery. His funeral will take place this afternoon, at 2 1/2 o'clock.

Mr. John Hallett died at his residence on Washington street, on Friday last, after a lingering and painful illness. Although Mr. Hallett had been living in Quincy only a few years, yet he had made many warm friends by his quiet and gentlemanly manners. His funeral took place on Monday, from his residence, and was largely attended by friends from Quincy, South Boston and a delegation of his brother workers. The flowers were very beautiful, and consisted of two pillars, one from his children and one from his shopmates, and an elegant star from friends in South Boston, beside bouquets.

POSTPONED. The entertainment announced for Wednesday evening at Faxon Hall by friends of the Universalist Society was postponed on account of the severe storm. The very low price of admission to this excellent entertainment, will induce many to purchase tickets, and it has been thought best to secure the Town Hall for the better accommodation of our citizens. Although we think there will be no occasion to rush early for seats, still we believe the audience will have the pleasure of listening to a very superior concert by some excellent talent, and the pantomime will make mirth for all. Price ten cents.

PEOPLE'S COURSE. The popularity of the People's Course was shown in the large audience which filled the hall last Saturday evening in spite of the severe storm. Preparations have been made for a very large audience this evening which will be called out, undoubtedly by the attraction offered. The Park Instrumental Concert Company is advertised. It consists of six persons. Five of these are members of the same family and play a variety of musical instruments, such as the cornet, zither, violin, crystal chimes, etc. The remaining person is the celebrated pianist, Mr. T. P. Ryder. The programme which is presented is a brilliant one, including pieces for both brass and stringed instruments. It cannot fail to be satisfactory.

A HANDSOME PRESENT. On Tuesday evening the friends with whom Mr. Kelley holds Sunday evening services, in Revere Hall, met at that hall and enjoyed a few hours in a very social and pleasing manner. During the evening Rev. Mr. Kelley was presented with a handsome sum of money and Mr. Charles T. Reed, whose services as musician greatly added to the enjoyment of the meetings, was also kindly remembered.

Squantum News.

Quite a sad accident happened last week, Thursday, between eight and nine o'clock, which cost two men their lives. They were employed by the Dorchester Bay Tunnel Company. The facts, as near as can be learned, are as follows:—

The masons of what is called the centre shaft were about out of cement, and three men were detailed to go into the west shaft with three or four barrels of cement, to last till a new load could be towed over. The men loaded, instead of three or four barrels, seventeen over a large boat, and started to row over. The water was very rough, and the men, when passing across, were assisted by men on the water-boat to throw some of the cement overboard. They threw three barrels over. Soon after the boat went over a large wave, and on coming down ran her nose under, and went down, leaving the three men struggling for their lives in the water. Their names were O. Lintman, his son George, and John Russell. They all immediately struck out to swim to the centre shaft, but being the nearest landing place, Mr. Lintman taking the lead, with a small oar in his hand, while his son, who could not swim, had presence of mind enough to hang to an oar and a piece of plank, and Russell had nothing but his hands.

When but a short distance from the shaft the foremost Lintman turned to the others and told them to keep on; he had got the ramp and had got to go down. He then sank. Soon after Russell went down. He had a heavy pair of gum boots on, and could make but little headway. Young Lintman was then floating near the centre shaft, within about 100 feet. One of the men at the shaft tied a rope around his waist and tried to swim out to save Lintman, but he had to be pulled ashore for some reason. Then a Swede had the other end of the rope tied around himself, and while they were pulling the other in he ran and jumped, striking some twenty-five feet out in the water, and soon swam and caught the man by the collar, and they were both drawn ashore safely. The boat was seen to sink, but there was no boat there, and they could render no assistance. They constructed a raft, but the material was light, and the first wave that struck it stove it to pieces, and they had to stand up and see their fellow-workmen drown.

Work on Moon Island, as has been reported, is not completely suspended. Contractors C. W. Parker & Co. are not doing anything at present; but sub-contractor W. Cochran is working on his steam shovel, and is excavating and running out about 150 car loads of earth per day.

The reservoir on Moon Island will not be completed until the fall of '84. We understand that about 5,000 feet of the sewer is completed between the middle shaft and Squantum east side.

There seems to be a scarcity of ducks and geese in Quincy this winter. It is a pity to see a duck in the water. We think a few more floating steam batteries, coming down and cruising over the bay, would probably frighten all the game away forever. A few days since one poor duck, after raising from the water, had his charges shot first at it, the last charge being fired after the duck was out of sight.

Friday, Jan. 6th, was the coldest day we have had this season. Mercury stood at zero at 7 A. M. HAWKEYE.

SENTENCE. In two cases of William O'Connor, of Quincy, for keeping a liquor nuisance, which came before the December term, he was found guilty and the exceptions asked being overruled, he was this week fined $100 and costs on one case, and $50 and costs on the other.

On Thursday afternoon of last week, Mr. Will C. Hanson, of Attleboro' and Miss Eleanor M. D., eldest daughter of Mr. Stillman B. Pratt, editor of the Marlboro' Mirror, were married at the residence of the bride's parents, in Marlboro'. Rev. A. F. Newton officiating. Mr. William White and Mr. Fred L. Morse, of Attleboro' acted as best men. Misses Lucy B. and Hannah M. Pratt of Attleboro', Arrabella F. L. Maud and Bessie D. Pratt, Gussie May Goss, Josie Morse and Miss White as bridesmaids. The happy couple were the recipients of many elegant presents. The couple left home on Friday morning for their future home in Attleboro'.

Accept our congratulations and may all their anticipations be realized.

DECEASED. Seth Dewing, father of Mr. Seth Dewing of this town, died in Weymouth on Sunday last, aged 91 years and 4 months. His funeral took place at that town, on Wednesday. Rev. P. D. Cowan of Weymouth, and Samuel Kelley, of this town officiating. After which, Meridian Lodge, F. A. M. in which deceased has been a Master Mason 72 years, performed Masonic funeral rites.

TRICKY. Charles L. Brown, an office boy at 30 Court square, Boston, bound and gagged himself, after tampering with the combination of the safe Tuesday morning, and when found was insensible. He told an improbable story at first about being assaulted by two men, but afterward confessed the truth. He is thought to be a victim of dime novel literature.

Our Children's Comfort.

FRIEND PATRIOT.—I would like to ask through your columns if there can be any business done at the Atlantic school house, where our children from Squantum can remain indoors after school hours, until the conveyance from Squantum arrives to take them home. Last Monday the school was dismissed at about one o'clock, on account of a teachers' meeting. Mr. Lloyd took nothing of it and did not go after the children; they were turned out of the school house and even of the platform. They repaired to Mr. Gurney's store and were soon turned out of it, as the clerks were obliged to close the store for some reason or other. The only alternative was for them to walk to Squantum, a distance of over two miles. Some of the little ones were less than seven years old.

Now with the snow five or six inches deep, on unbroken roads, does it look hardly right? We think if Mr. Frye had been principal of our school there would have been a warm place for the little ones to wait in, and a responsible person dispatched for a conveyance to take them home. We hope, however, it will not occur again, as it is hardly up to the standard of the reputation of our Quincy schools.

For the Patriot.

Bostonian Society.

The annual meeting of the Bostonian Society was held on Tuesday, in the Council Chamber of the Old State House, Boston. The President, Curtis Gould, reviewed the history of the society during its first year, and said that a remarkable degree of interest has been manifested by the public in its objects and achievements thus far. Visitors from all parts of the world have found pleasure in treading the floors of the historic State House, and members of interest have been presented and hung upon its walls.

The report of the Directors, after sketching the genesis of the society, said that the society had been organized for the purpose of preserving the memory of the events of the Revolution, and of promoting the study of the history of the United States. The number of members is 345. There have been 300 visitors since the rooms were opened in August. Gifts and loans of pictures, books, maps, plans, etc., have been made by the city of Boston, the New England Historic-Geographical Society, the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Boston Board of Trade and numerous individual citizens.

The report of Gen. S. M. Quincy, the Treasurer, showed receipts of $1653.01, expenditures of $878.91 and a balance of $774.10.

Amendments to the by-laws were adopted providing for the appointment of Committees on Rooms, on Papers, on and Increased Membership, increasing the number of Directors from seven to nine, and making the payment of $50 the condition of life-membership. A rare and excellent steel engraving of John Quincy Adams, in 1826, presented by Mr. James A. Dupee, was received by the society.

A FAT OFFICE. The Committee on Expenditures in the Department of Justice at Washington, have finished their investigation of the Clerk's office of the Supreme Court. Mr. Willis, Chairman of the committee, states that the committee acted upon information furnished by Silvertown, whom Clerk McKenney discharged. It is stated that McKenney's salary, and about six times the salary of a member of Congress. Middleton, who died last summer, was Clerk for 22 years, and during that time he received a salary of $30,000 per annum. He left a large estate.

GEN. BUTLER'S STAFF. The following officers are appointed on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief. Brigadier General Samuel Dalton of Salem, Adjutant General.

Brigadier General Orran G. Cilley of Boston, Surgeon General, who volunteers to serve without pay.

Brigadier General George F. Verry of Worcester, Judge Advocate General.

Colonel Albert C. Woodworth of Chicopee, Aide-de-camp.

Colonel Almon C. Drinkwater of Braintree, Aide-de-camp.

Colonel John P. Sweeney of Lawrence, Aide-de-camp.

Colonel Harrison W. Huguley of Boston, Aide-de-camp.

Lieut. Col. Isaac F. Kingsbury of Newton, Assistant Adjutant General.

CALENDAR. We are in receipt of a handsome folding calendar for 1883, from "The Congregationalist and Recorder" Boston.

Woburn, Waltham and Northampton will ask the Legislature for city charters.

Gov. Lovell issued 39 pardons last year.

Summary of News.

The sale of pews in Plymouth Church, New York amounted to $37,000, a small decrease over last year.

Probate Court.

The regular monthly session of Probate Court in Quincy was held on Wednesday last. Judge W. H. Cobb, presiding. After a few words relative to the sale, he couched in his usual crisp and witty style, he said with some emotion: "I feel that in the nature of things the term of my service among you is brief. A few years more I shall be out of the way, and while I believe that many will be sorry, I also believe that a great many very conscientious people will thank God that a hindrance has been removed. But as long as I am here I shall try to be faithful to my convictions." The amount realized was $75,001. Of this sum, $24,200 were for premiums and $51,720 for rentals.

The Boston Daily Transcript, says:—"A gentleman well known in educational circles hired from Morse's livery stable, Dedham, Tuesday afternoon, a horse and vehicle. Toward evening he had occasion to visit Memorial Hall, and after transacting his business he took a train for his home on the Providence Railroad, entirely forgetting the horse and carriage, which he had previously left in a shed at the rear of the hall. At about one o'clock Wednesday, a watchman discovered the horse and notified the stable keeper of the same. To show the gentleman's absent-mindedness, he had not even thought of the horse when he awoke the following morning."

Snow was a foot deep in Washington, D. C., on Thursday morning.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

There was a tone of sadness in the remarks made by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher at the annual sale of pews in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, on Tuesday evening.

After a few words relative to the sale, he couched in his usual crisp and witty style, he said with some emotion: "I feel that in the nature of things the term of my service among you is brief. A few years more I shall be out of the way, and while I believe that many will be sorry, I also believe that a great many very conscientious people will thank God that a hindrance has been removed. Stoves and Ranges.

disease is rapidly increasing, so that at the
present time one-third of the entire mortality
of the country is attributed to pulmonary
diseases. Pneumonia is essentially a fever,
which especially affects the lungs. It more commonly strikes the lower lobe of the right lung. The late attack is first "engorged" or congested with blood. This is the first stage of the disease. It then becomes solidified. This is the second stage. The third is convalescence or death.
In fact, the source of all our troubles is consumption. The attack generally begins with a chill. No hints can be given for avoiding it except, don't expose yourself.
Dr. Chas. Craig, the originator of the wonderful kidney and liver cure, has at last succeeded to allow his consumption cure to be put upon the market, the compounding of which he personally supervised. He said
to be the greatest remedy known for all pulmonary complaints.

Remember This.
If you are sick Hop Bitters will surely aid
Nature in making you well when all else fails.
If you are constipated, or dyspeptic, or are suffering from indigestion, or from the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. Hop Bitters is a sovereign remedy for all such complaints.
If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting Death this moment, and turn to a cure for Hop Bitters.
If you are sick, with that terrible sickness Nervousness, you will find "Hop Balm in Oil"
the use of Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system
against the source of all our troubles—malaria, epidemic, bilious, and intermittent fevers by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you are a sufferer from a pimply, or sallow skin,
bad breath, pains and aches, and feel miserable, or disagreeable, don't let your fair skin, rich blood, and sweetest breath,
be lost and forfeited.

In short, they cure all Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Blood, Liver, Nerves, Kidneys, Bladder, Throat, and all such cases that will not cure or help.

That poor, bedridden, invalid wife, sister,
mother or daughter, can be made the picture
of health, by a few bottles of Hop Bitters, costing but a trifle. Will you let them suffer?

The Quincy Patriot.

For the Patriot.
Contentment.
BY A. J. KENNEDY.

Contentment is a treasure
The world cannot control.
It wisely finds the measure
That will sustain the soul.

'Tis better far than jewels,
'Tis better far than gems.
For discord leads in ruins
Contentment's diadem.

A noble, true contentment
Will do the best,
To utilize the present
And trust to heaven the rest.

And then is a blessing
That stores the mind with food,
The pearl that's worth possessing.
A calm, contented mood.

But should we be contented,
When duty is not done,
The right misinterpreted,
To blame unjustly one?

Content may some times weary,
And breathe a thoughtful sigh,
Why some of blessings weary,
Miser and misapp.

When discontent is blighting,
The loss that shows the way,
The land of time is waiting:
Unhappiness is there.

Contentment, faith's sweet token,
How patient doth it wait,
The land heave to open
Each day the peaceful gate.

Farm and Garden.
Diseases of Poultry.

The diseases of poultry, being taken in time, may not result in a serious mortality, often resulting in death,
but prevention is generally as fatal
in poultry keeping as anything else.

The ailments of fowls may generally
be traced to a variable temperature, to irregular, injudicious feeding, or to their being kept on ground which has become impure with the excrement of other fowls.

Judicious feeding, perfect cleanliness,
and occasional removal to new ground,
will, to a great extent, keep fowls healthy.

The following are the principal diseases among poultry:
Apoplexy, evinced by inflammation of the brain.

Tracheal Inflammation (or croup),
with paralytic results in the windpipe.
Roupe, which is highly infectious,
and a very deadly disease, but if taken in time can be cured. The preliminary symptoms are a slight hoarseness, and catching in the breath, as if from cold.

Moulting, with old fowls, is often so severe and so protracted, that it carries them off. The young are also victims of leg weakness and bad feathering.

Sickly fowls should always be removed from the fowl-house on the first symptom of illness, as they are generally ill by their companions—pecked dead, and evidently become objects of dislike.

Apoplexy with fowls, as in human beings, is difficult to cure. It is generally the result of high feeding, and is most common among laying hens,
which are sometimes found dead on the nest—the explosive efforts required in laying being the immediate cause of the attack.

The only hope for cure consists in an instant and copious bleeding, by opening a vein with a sharp pointed pen-knife or lancet. The largest of the veins seen on the under side of the wing should be selected and opened in a longitudinal direction, not cut across,
and so long as the thumb is pressed on the vein at any point between the opening and the body, the blood will be found to flow freely.

Light food and rest should be given to the bird after the operation.

Gapes, in nine cases out of ten, are obtained from rain or impure water,
and in a certain preventive (not cure)
is desired, the use of camphor will be found the most efficient remedy.

A small lump, about the size of a peanut,
kept constantly moist with oil, and
the fowl's drink will make gapes unknown in your yard. Having carefully studied this precaution, this year more particularly, and having raised over 200 chickens without one case of gapes, I can testify that camphor is the only certain remedy.

Rain water used, after having stood
some time be found, by examination
under a microscope, to contain worms identical with those taken from the throat of a chicken suffering from gapes.

Roupe, if treated at the outset, may be cured by feeding twice a day with stale crusts of bread soaked in strong ale. Dousing and cleanliness are indispensable.

Fowls sometimes waste away without any apparent disease. In such cases
a teaspoonful of cod-liver oil per day will often be found a most efficacious remedy.

Scouring or diarrhoea is caused by the too abundant use of relaxing food.
Cayenne pepper, or chalk, or both,
mixed with meal or boiled rice, check
the complaint.

Leg weakness is generally caused by the size and weight of the body, being more than the legs can bear. It is shown by the bird resting on the first joint. Being entirely the result of weakness, the best treatment is that which gives general strength and stimulants to the system. Tincture of iron, say five drops to a saucer of water, must be given.—Essay by S. M. Saunders, read at the meeting of American Poultry Society.

Fashion Notes.
Roman gold is fashionable in jewelry
and in the demand is for light, graceful pieces of color, and also broadened in small designs.

Cashmere is worn in all plain shades
of color, and also broadened in small
designs.

Velvet, Ottoman repped silks, brocaded satins and silks, with large figures, and sometimes brightened with gold threads, and plain satins and plain silks are the stuffs used for the richest evening dresses.

Bright bows and loops of soft, lustrous
Ottoman ribbons are placed among the folds of lace neck bows when lace is used for this purpose, but ribbons alone forms the greater number of bows for the neck.

Basques, with a sharply pointed front, short on the hips and position bags, are much worn, with narrow bow pleatings being placed around the bottom and terminating under the position in the back.

An Irishman, who wore a very
ragged coat, was asked of what stuff it
was made.
"I don't know," he replied. "I think

Temperance.

(Published for publication by the W. C. T. Union.)
The Alcohol Habit.

In some of the lower marine organisms, there are two distinct systems of circulation one of the colorless blood and one of the red blood. The great mass of the blood consists of water, and anything else introduced is not only surplusage, but so much that is foreign. The introduction of alcohol into the blood can do nothing but mischief. It alters the normal, regular healthy condition of the blood, and there is a point upon which my friend, Professor Richardson of London, who has paid great attention to this subject, has dwelt, namely, that it alters the healthy appearance of the red corpuscles. When they are seen under the microscope they seem irregular, and that indicates that they are not in a healthy condition, and particularly because they run together in the circulation. If they run together, the surface which is exposed to the air is not as large, and this condition interferes with the rapidity of the oxygenation.
The larger the surface the greater the rapidity of the change. Anything which makes the red corpuscles run together, instead of swimming separately, as we know they do, we see them in the case of the blood of a frog, checks the rapidity of the aeration. Now, there is one thing which every school in the land should have, every scholar should be able to see these corpuscles as well as to hear them described. Naturally the red corpuscles run separately and freely. If a stream of carbonic acid be sent into a frog's foot which is under the microscope, it will cause the red corpuscles to run together in such a way as to make them together and stop the circulation. Alcohol tends to do the same thing as this poisonous acid. So evil is caused by the introduction of even small quantities of this agent into the blood. It interferes with the normal respiratory process. Not-thing is more important than the heart's action for the maintenance of this process. The respiratory action is greatly reduced in repose and the heart's action is reduced also. We do not need at night to keep up the same circulation
that is required for vigorous action during the day. In a healthy condition the wonderful harmony of the system proportions the respirations and the process of circulation to the needs of the body. We all know how, when we are walking briskly, the heart's action increases and the respiratory action increases. If the food, or drink, is tight
there is a feeling of restriction, and on going up hill this restriction is strongly felt. This action is controlled by a nervous system of whose functions we have only come in the last few years to have any conception, the vaso-motor system which regulates the calibre of the blood-vessels. It has a great influence on the circulation. The blush of nervous agitation and bashfulness,
or the pallor of fear are due in the first place to the relaxation of the capillary vessels, causing an increase in the amount of blood to be sent into them
in the case of the blush, and a contraction of the vessels and a diminution of the amount of blood in case of pallor.

Household Receipts.
FRUIT FRITTERS. The following is an excellent receipt for the foundation of all kinds of fruit fritters. Make a batter of half a pint of sweet milk,
two ounces of flour and two ounces of butter; sweeten and flavor to suit your taste. The whites of two eggs beaten, are to be stirred in last, or, to make variety, you can sometimes use both the yolks and whites. Stir the chopped fruit in this batter, and fry
in hot lard, dropping it by spoonfuls;
or you can dip the fruit in the batter
and fry. The first time you try weigh the ingredients; after that it will not be necessary if you are, like most cooks,
"good at guessing."

INDIAN-MEAL CRUTCHES. Indian-meal crutches are good with coffee;
make them pour one and a half teaspoons of boiling milk over two cups of sifted Indian meal; stir it vigorously;
when it is cool add two cups of wheat flour, one cup of butter (or two-thirds of a cup if you do not care to have them rich) one cup and a half of sugar, three eggs and beat well. Add a teaspoonful of nutmeg or cinnamon powder, and a table-spoonful of nutmeg or cinnamon. Let this rise till very light. If not stiff enough to roll well, add equal quantities of meal and flour,
roll out in a sheet about half an inch thick, and cut in small diamond-shaped cakes. Fry in very hot lard.

MOLASSES CAKE. One cup of mollasses, one cup brown sugar, one cup of cold water. Boil together, then add a cup of butter and set aside to cool.
Four eggs as thick as a pound cake, add four well beaten eggs, one cup of raisins and currants, one-half pound of citron. Bake two hours.

EGGS ON TOAST. Buttered toast,
one egg to each slice; butter, pepper,
salt. Drop whole eggs into a dish.
Set it in the oven. Let it remain there until the whites of the eggs are set.
The moment the dish is taken from the oven, break the eggs with a fork, add pepper, salt, and butter to taste. Then spread it on hot and crisp toast bread, well buttered. Eggs prepared in this way are equally nice on Graham, brown, or flour bread, toasted.

Anecdotes.
"Now, little children," said the intelligent gentleman, who, having travelled abroad was asked to address the Sunday-school "now, little children,
look at me and tell me where you think I have come from."
Without the least hesitation the shrill
chorus shrieked, "From the country."

"How old is this saw?" asked Johnny, of a carpenter.
"Why, my boy," replied the man of tools, "can't you tell by its teeth? You know you tell a horse's age by its teeth."

A child being asked what were the three great fears of the Jews, promptly replied:
"Breakfast, dinner and supper."

A Sunday-school boy was asked by the superintendent if his father was a Christian.
"Yes, sir," he replied, "but he is not working at it much."

An Irishman, who wore a very
was made.
"I don't know," he replied. "I think

People's Course.

This Saturday evening Mr. G. P. Gilman will give another of his delightful illustrated lectures. When some weeks ago Mr. Gilman appeared in this course, he gave one of the most entertaining and instructive lectures which it has been the good fortune of the town people to both hear and see. This time his lecture will be no less interesting. He takes for his topic "Scenes in England and Scotland," which will give him opportunity to describe and picture some of the most notable places in these historic and romantic regions. His views will be thrown upon a large screen by a powerful dissolving stereoscope.

Last Saturday evening the hall was packed as usual. Although some two hundred persons waited outside for the doors to open, there was no complaint, and entrance was made by line and in good order. This evening officers will be in attendance to secure the same disposition and quietness.

The people of the town are promised a lecture by Dr. Wm. Everett, and the subject will be "Work and Wages," and an eloquent and scholarly presentation of it may be expected.

Next Saturday evening the entertainment will be given by the Schubert Club or Boston Open Company.

The committee are under great obligations to the generous and general co-operation of the townspeople. The enterprise has been seen to be the outcome of a liberal public spirit, and its influence permanently beneficial. To many storekeepers they feel especially indebted for accommodations rendered in the sale of tickets and in advertising.

Installation Services.

The officers of Merry Mount Lodge No. 617, Knights of Honor, were installed on Friday evening of last week by District Deputy Grand Dictator Henry P. Oakman, of Nantasket, assisted by District Deputy Past Grand Dictator Charles H. Burrell, of Boston, and District Deputy Grand Guide C. E. Delane, of Boston.

At the close of the ceremonies one of the members vacated the lodge room in a manner sufficient to arouse suspicions in the minds of members that "something was in the wind." They were not, however, kept long in suspense, for in a moment the door opened and the vacated member returned, when he made a motion to close the lodge, intimating that the presence of the members in attendance was desired forthwith at Faxon Hall. Of course all were now convinced that there was a "cat under the tail," and each having an intense desire to ascertain what was on foot, did not care to depart without, and it was carried by an unanimous vote.

All then hastily proceeded to Faxon Hall, where the members found, much to their surprise and gratification, a large number of their lady friends, although it must be admitted that some of the brethren had previously had a word whispered in their ears. After an interchange of greetings, all wended their way to the lower hall, where a bountiful repast was in waiting. After the wants of the inner man had been appeased, the members returned to the upper hall, where the time was spent in social intercourse and dancing. The occasion was one of great social enjoyment to all present.

The F. F. F.'s. Those who have attended the annual entertainments of this Association in past years should not fail to be present at their gathering on Friday evening next. The entertainment will be a very enjoyable one and will, as usual, add greatly to the pleasure of the evening. The music for dancing will be furnished by Mr. Monk, which always conduces to the pleasure of those who enjoy a good dance. On this night the German, one of the most fashionable and graceful dances will be introduced. Mr. Frank F. Prescott will be floor director. It is the intention of the F. F. F.'s to make their time passing as pleasant, and enjoyable as their previous ones.

A FINE CONCERT. The miscellaneous entertainment given at the Town Hall, on Monday evening, was well attended and very highly appreciated. The singing was excellent, particularly the songs by Mrs. R. T. Sawyer, and received hearty applause. Seldom has the home talent of this place given us so good an entertainment.

ACCIDENT. As Mr. Charles F. Rice, of Quincy, was pounding with a hammer while working in his blacksmith shop on Tuesday last, a piece of steel was broken from the hammer, which passed through his apron and pants, and embedded itself very deeply into the fleshy part of his leg. Notwithstanding the careful prodding of the wound the piece of steel could not be found.

REUNION. The annual reunion and business meeting of the Massachusetts Press Association, will take place on the 31st inst., at the Quincy House, Brattle street, Boston. The Quincy House has been recently remodelled, and now offers excellent accommodations to no first-class hotel in Boston, the dining room seating over 200 persons. A good programme has been arranged by President Proctor and the executive committee of the association, and it is expected that there will be a good attendance of members and their lady friends.

AGRICULTURAL FESTIVAL. The Weymouth Agricultural Society hold a very enjoyable festival at the Town Hall, Weymouth, on Friday evening next. The proceeds of which will be used toward the erection of a more commodious hall for exhibition purposes. The programme consists of a band concert, addresses by prominent gentlemen, selections by the Arion-Cecilia Club and dancing. Col. Benjamin S. Lowell is to be floor director, and a delightful time may be expected. Tickets for sale by Messrs. James R. Wild and George A. Ordway.

The doctors report over 400 cases of measles in Hyde Park. The attendance at the schools is greatly affected; at one school over one-fourth of the pupils are absent on account of sickness.

After paying $22,000,000 in taxes for the Brooklyn bridge, and having $7,000,000 more to raise, the people of those cities are now confronted with a proposition to pay toll for crossing it when completed.

Brief Locals.

The Rev. F. A. Friguglietti is confined to the house by sickness.

The Rev. Mr. Cotton and wife are enjoying a short visit to Florida.

Howard W. Hsieh has had his Quincy and Boston express offices connected by telephone.

Dr. George J. Jones was quite severely kicked by a horse, in Mr. Hartney's stable, one day last week.

The Hook and Ladder Company will hold an assembly at Faxon Hall, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 31st.

At First Church the services begin next Sunday at 10.30 A. M., instead of 10.50. Sunday School begins at 12 M.

At a meeting of the new board of Directors of the National Granite Bank, Hon. Charles Marsh was elected President.

In his course on "original christianity," the Rev. Mr. Wilson will preach next Sunday on the "Christ of St. Paul."

Russ B. Walker, the popular and successful teacher in dancing, will open a school in Quincy on Saturday, Feb. 10th.

The Selectmen are desirous that all persons having demands against the town should present them on or before the 31st instant.

We this week publish a list of the marriages contracted in this town during the year 1882, which will be found on this page.

The descendants of the late Seth Spear will hold a basket picnic at Faxon Hall, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Feb. 1st.

Mr. George A. Ordway has been appointed agent for the Clark Cove Gunpowder Company, for the towns of Weymouth, Quincy and Braintree.

Mr. Seth Arthur Pratt, grandson of Mrs. Joseph Burrell, of this town, left home on Wednesday with his wife, for Zanzibar, Africa, where they will probably remain several years.

During the trotting excitement on Hancock street on Saturday afternoon last, a sleigh collided with Mr. D. K. Flint's team completely demolishing it, but doing no further damage.

Read carefully the advertisement of furniture, horses, carriages, &c., at auction by Joseph W. Lombard. This sale will offer great inducements to those desiring to secure excellent bargains.

Among the deaths this week we are grieved to announce that of Mrs. Cyrus Patch, a lady who will be missed by a large circle of friends. A pleasant home and a happy family will receive a sad blow by her sudden demise.

Officers Fernald, Locke and Langley, found on Friday last, the old system of far superior to the new. Quite a number of pupils are now attending a private school in Quincy, and were it not for the distance many more would go. Why don't some canvass the place and see what the prospect is?

Knights and Ladies of Honor.

On Wednesday evening the officers of Maple Lodge No. 312, Knights and Ladies of Honor, were duly installed at Revere Hall, by District Deputy Grand Protector, James A. Cook and suite of South Boston. The following were the officers installed:

Post Protector, George O. Langley; Vice Protector, Ida F. Pratt; Chaplain, Eliza E. Field; Guide, M. Lizzie Fernald; Secretary, William W. Pennington; Financial Secretary, Joseph A. Thaxter; Treasurer, Harriet E. Tirrell; Guardian, Jonathan Pine; Sentinel, Joseph A. Bass.

After the installation ceremonies and addresses by the Grand Officers, the company sat down to an elegant repast, to which ample justice was done. This was followed by vocal music by sisters Laura Tirrell and M. Lizzie Fernald; a most satisfactory and happy occasion.

A Lawrence woman waited until 11 o'clock for her husband's return from his club meeting, and shortly after that hour, the gentleman received a note, in which he found, neatly packed, his night shirt, comb, hair brush and tooth brush. He took the hint, and has not attended club meeting since.

RAPID GROWTH. Portland, Ore., and its suburbs grew last year by 942 new buildings, worth $2,970,000; has a wholesale trade of $4,000,000; and turned out manufactured goods to the value of $7,700,000. The value of imports into the Columbia river was $23,000,000, of which $1,000,000 was from foreign ports. The exports from the Columbia river were $15,000,000. The principal items were—wheat $5,757,000, flour $2,000,000, salmon $2,035,000, wool $1,365,000. The foreign exports were $9,000,000, and the domestic exports $8,000,000.

The Old Colony Memorial says: "The business outlook for 1883 is such as to make some men nervous, if we are to take into account their written and spoken words in all directions. The number of business failures in 1882 was greater by nearly 2000 than in 1881, and more than 3000 greater than in 1880. The condition of some trading and manufacturing interests in the country is such that trouble may well be anticipated in connection with them in the near future; on the whole, however, there seems to be little need for apprehension but that the present year will prove at least as safe and profitable in its operations as the last."

The number of business failures in 1882 was greater by nearly 2000 than in 1881, and more than 3000 greater than in 1880. The condition of some trading and manufacturing interests in the country is such that trouble may well be anticipated in connection with them in the near future; on the whole, however, there seems to be little need for apprehension but that the present year will prove at least as safe and profitable in its operations as the last."

United States Senator.

The Massachusetts Legislature began its balloting for a Senator on Tuesday last.

On the fifth ballot the Democrats joined with the Republicans who favored the election of John D. Long and secured his election on the part of the Senate. In the House, George F. Hoar received on each ballot a very large vote, but a few short of a majority.

It became apparent that continued voting on that day would result in concurrence with Senate vote of the House, and the matter was held over to Wednesday.

By this proceeding future voting for Senator was centered in a Joint Convention, that being the law in reference to the choice of Senator in this state, in case of failure to elect by the separate bodies upon the first day of balloting.

Thereafter the two bodies—the House and Senate—met in joint convention at 12 o'clock, noon, of each succeeding regular day, until a choice is effected. The convention accordingly balloted twice on Wednesday, but without effecting a choice.

On Thursday, Hon. Geo. Frisbie Hoar was re-elected United States Senator for the term of six years from the fourth of March next, on the first ballot, which was as follows:—

Whole number 277
Necessary to elect 140
John D. Hoar 148
W. W. Crapo 3
W. M. Brewster 2
All others 2

The Representatives from Quincy voted as follows:—Barker for Hoar, and Eaton and Patten for Bowdoin.

Those Beautiful Flowers.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Among the many mementos of affectionate remembrance which I have received from the inhabitants of Quincy, there are none more pleasing than the one which you mention in your last paper, which was presented by the young ladies in the Insurance Office, who by some mysterious influences unknown to me, had found out that it was my eightieth birthday, and had prepared a very great surprise in the shape of a very well arranged and beautiful bouquet, a fit emblem of the purity of the female heart.

Now, it is perfectly natural that young ladies should present flowers to young gentlemen, and, as a matter of course, that such favors should be kindly reciprocated; but, for young ladies to present such a beautiful offering to an old man like me, from whom nothing could be expected in return, except kindly remembrance of the deed, is one of the most gratifying tokens of friendship that could be bestowed. What could be more gratifying to an old man than to be so kindly remembered by the young. Such deeds must spring from the purest motives of the human heart. The flowers and their beauty will soon wither and fade, and the receiver will soon be missed from the scenes of earth; but while life and reason remain, the beauty and fragrance of the flowers, and the kindness of the donors will remain as fresh and fragrant as when first bestowed.

The memory of such deeds may be soon lost upon earth, but the pure motive which prompted it, will be remembered on high, and in due time it will be rewarded. The flowers which you do me all things well, and in the proper time be returned in wreaths of flowers upon their heads—flowers that never fade.

There was still another gift by one outside of the office which should not be forgotten, which, if I mistake not, came from one of a family who for four generations I have had the pleasure, as well as the honor, of calling my friends. Look out for them when good sleighing comes, with the grandmother, who for several years in my younger days was to me as a guardian angel, adviser and friend; with the earthy-grandmother, who although her earthly vision was entirely cut off, yet with her heart bright, clear and calm as the setting of the sun at the close of a summer day, whose pleasant and happy countenance will never be forgotten, and after so long a pleasure to see their virtues transmitted even to the fourth generation.

THE HIGHEST priced modern coin is the United States silver dollar of 1864. There are only two in existence, and these change hands at the rate of about $1,000 apiece.

THE BEST TRADE of the New Jersey Bureau of Labor Statistics, just published, it is shown that machinists have higher earnings than any other tradesmen, the average for machinists being $730.01 per year, against the general average of $428.85 for male tradesmen. Bricklayers, masons and some other tradesmen may, perhaps, receive higher wages than machinists, but they have work only a portion of the year, while good machinists can find plenty of steady work, be it summer or winter, wet or dry, hot or cold. The machinist's trade is one not likely to be come overworked. In fact, the demand for more machinists has become chronic, and any young man of mechanical tastes should not suffer that he learn that trade in a thorough manner.

An Iron bridge at Paper Mill Village, in Bridgewater, which has been in constant use for fifteen years, and was considered a safe and substantial structure, fell suddenly on Sunday evening. A gentleman from Middleboro, with a lady, was crossing at the time, and the cracking started up the horse so he reached the abutment in the purest motives of the human heart. The bridge was sixty-two feet long, and its destruction will entail some expense to the town for a new structure.

THE STATE DETECTIVE FORCE. The State Detective Force, organized 16, had the chief recommends an increase. The amount of fines and costs paid during the year was $819,094; stolen property to the amount of $285,250 was restored to its owners, and 487 arrests were made. The expenses of the force were $20,743.49, or $146.51 less than the appropriation. During the year 942 factories and manufacturing establishments and 75 public buildings were inspected.

The City Bank and the Fifth Ward Savings Bank, of Jersey City, have been wrecked by the president's son-in-law, and the book-keeper, who are charged with doing the work intentionally.

NOBILITY.
Who counts himself as noble born
Is noble in spite of place,
And honors are not handed to him
Who wears them not with native grace.
The prince may sit with crown and chair,
Nor feel his state degraded thereby;
But he who has but rags and rags,
Must stand as noble as the peer.
Then be thou peasant, be thou poor,
Count it with more than the crown;
Stand on a larger hierarchy
Than that of nation or of name.
What though not nobly knighted knight,
These halls have missed a worthy guest;
That mansion is not privileged
That is not open to the best.
Glad to see thee when thou comest,
Nor wrangle for the lesser claim;
It is not to be despised,
To have the right without the name.
Then, dost thou come of noble blood,
Honor not thy good company;
If lowly born, so base thy life,
That gentle blood may come of thee.

hens the past year, and have kept a careful account of what they have yielded me. I began last January with 18 hens. These were increased by purchases at various times, so that now
I have the Worcester Post Chronicle.

Temperance.
CONTINUED.
The caso-motor system has its function in sending to every part of the body the amount which its condition may need. Thus the blood comes to the salivary glands in a very small quantity in the ordinary periods of rest;
but when they are put in action, the caso-motor system immediately relaxes
the great trunks that convey blood to them, and a much larger quantity of blood is sent in consequence, while the blood is not sent regularly to any one part. Where there is need of blood, there this system sends it. It is so in the case of muscular action. When the muscle is at rest, the blood sent to it is small in quantity, and it returns very little changed; it is almost arterial in its character. But once put into action, and a much larger quantity is sent back in a highly venous state, showing that it has lost a quantity of oxygen, and received a quantity of carbonic acid. All this wonderful adjustment takes place of itself in a healthy body, and anything made to derange
this will cause harm.

NOBILITY.
Who counts himself as noble born
Is noble in spite of place,
And honors are not handed to him
Who wears them not with native grace.
The prince may sit with crown and chair,
Nor feel his state degraded thereby;
But he who has but rags and rags,
Must stand as noble as the peer.
Then be thou peasant, be thou poor,
Count it with more than the crown;
Stand on a larger hierarchy
Than that of nation or of name.
What though not nobly knighted knight,
These halls have missed a worthy guest;
That mansion is not privileged
That is not open to the best.
Glad to see thee when thou comest,
Nor wrangle for the lesser claim;
It is not to be despised,
To have the right without the name.
Then, dost thou come of noble blood,
Honor not thy good company;
If lowly born, so base thy life,
That gentle blood may come of thee.

Did the Hens Pay?
S. B. Hoyt, of Barnardston, Mass., writes to the Worcester Post Chronicle:
I have taken some pains with my
hens the past year, and have kept a
careful account of what they have
yielded me. I began last January with 18 hens. These were increased by
purchases at various times, so that now
I have the Worcester Post Chronicle.

PNEUMONIA.
Its Extraordinary Prevalence and Fatality.
As shown by the mortality reports from all
disease is rapidly increasing so that at the
present time one-third of the entire mortality
of the country is attributed to pulmonary
disease. Pneumonia is essentially a fever,
which especially affects the lungs. It more commonly attacks the lower lobe of the right lung. The fever is first, "engorged," congested with blood. This is the first stage.
It then becomes a chill. This is the second stage. The third is convalescence or death.
It then becomes a fever again. This is the fourth stage. The attack generally begins with a chill, and is followed by a fever.
If the fever is not given for
avoiding it, except, don't expose yourself.
Dr. Chase, the originator of the method of treating pneumonia, has sent to allow his consumption cure to be put upon the market, the composition of which he personally superintends. It is said
monary complaints.

Thinking that it might interest the patrons of the Citizens' Gas Light Company to know what measure of success has attended the lowering of the price of gas from $5.00 to $3.00, the management of the above-named company deem it but proper to state the following facts in relation thereto.

As the public are well aware, the reduction was made on September 1st of the past year, since which time the sales have steadily and satisfactorily increased, and has thoroughly demonstrated that the public are ready to meet any fair-minded corporation half way, and that as long as a good article is sold at a fair price, it need not be begging for patronage; and the management take this occasion to return thanks to the citizens of Quincy for their very generous support. It will be the aim of the Company to sell gas of the best quality at the very lowest price consistent with the preservation of their property, and the payment of a fair interest on the money loaned.

In this connection it may be said that the result of reducing the price of gas has been so satisfactory that the Company has decided to rebuild their works and extend their mains to Wollaston, and as the weather will permit, which will probably be about May 1st.

Another feature of the business of the Company this coming spring will be the introduction of "Gas Cooking Stoves," for summer use.

This "gas" has left the uncertain field of experiment, and extends upon the more solid foundation of fact. The stoves are entirely reliable, doing all the work of first-class ranges in a very superior manner.

For the ordinary use of the domestic oil stove, with its attendant danger, care and dirt, you may substitute the non-odorous gas stove, with its attendant safety, ease and cleanliness. Always ready, no filling, no wick, no smoke, in short, the very pink of perfection, winning laurels wherever it is introduced, and proving itself the greatest blessing to the household.

These stoves the company intend to keep in stock and sell to the consumer at cost, in order that the very pink of perfection, winning laurels wherever it is introduced, and proving itself the greatest blessing to the household.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Company, held a few days ago, they decided to pay to the stockholders a two per cent. dividend for the four months ending Dec. 31, 1882, which is at the rate of six per cent. a year. The money will be paid upon application to the Treasurer, Chas. A. Howland, at the office of the Quincy Mutual Insurance Co., where all stockholders are particularly requested to call before February 1st.

Wollaston.

A social was held at the M. E. Church at Wollaston, Wednesday evening, which was regarded by all as a complete success. A table was set the full length of the church and spread with enticing viands. Then all sat down and ate together not least enjoying the communion with one another thus tokened.

The cup was passed and a handsome collection of seven dollars was taken. It was only a ten-cent supper but some special mention is made of Mr. Olney's gift. After supper was over and some time was spent in conversation, the singing, Miss Linda Randall, of the Boston school of elocution, declaimed some selections, with which all were highly pleased.

No attempt shall be made to describe all the pleasantness of the evening to which all added their cheerful words and happy countenances; all went away feeling to say "we have had a good time."

LECTURES. By referring to our advertising columns it will be seen that a very interesting course of four lectures is being given at the Christian Union Church, Quincy Point. The one on Thursday evening was by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Harris. On next Thursday evening, Mr. Herbert M. Federhen, one of Quincy's rising young men, will speak on "Our Political Duties." We hope that he will be greeted with a full house, as his lecture will, without doubt, be a very interesting one.

These lectures are to be followed by other home talent, and the proceeds are for the benefit of the church.

A LARGE SUPPLY. The ice merchants in Quincy have finished gathering their crop this week and have housed a large quantity from 12 to 16 inches thick. It has been an excellent season for the growth of this article "fruit," and it is in handsome solid crystal cakes, which will make the mouths of epicures water next summer for a taste. Messrs. Eaton have filled all their houses, and Mr. Prescott both of his, making a crop of 6,000 tons. The harvest is so large that all our citizens can be well supplied, at reasonable rates and there will be a quantity left for Milton, Braintree, and Weymouth.

COUNTY OF NORFOLK. Our readers will find in our columns this week a full report of the receipts and expenditures of this County for the past year. It makes a very good showing, leaving a surplus in the hands of the Treasurer, after paying all expenses, of over $27,000.

PROVERBIAL OUTRAGE. A very fine entertainment will be offered our citizens this evening, at the Town Hall, by the West Quincy Brass Band, led by their eminent soloist, Mr. H. C. Brown, together with eminent talent from Boston.

APPOINTMENT. Christopher J. Tolman, of 78 Brighton street, Boston, has been appointed agent for the National Temperance and Publication Society of New York. Orders for publications, tracts, etc., received and promptly filled.

TRAMBLER CATASTROPHY AT SEA. The German steamer CATHARIE collided with another vessel in a fog last Friday morning in the North Sea, and soon after sank. It is believed that over four hundred persons perished. The passengers for the most part were German emigrants.

On the first Sunday in December or thereabout such an amount of snow fell in Madrid, Spain, that the like thereof had not been known for twenty years. It is said the depth of the snow in the Spanish capital after a single day's storm was more than eleven inches.

Brief Locals.

A piano is advertised for sale, cheap.

There are five comrades of Paul Revere Post on the sick list.

We are pleased to learn that Rev. Mr. Frugiletti is convalescing.

There were two funerals Monday at the same number, Wednesday in this town.

Dr. M. K. Gale is spending a short time in Florida, for the benefit of his health.

Present your demands to the selectmen, on or before Wednesday next, Jan. 31st.

Mr. A. T. Jackson would be pleased to give instructions to a few pupils on the piano.

Among the graduates of the State Normal School at Bridgewater, on Wednesday, was Miss Elizabeth Adams Southern.

Interesting correspondence from East Milton and West Quincy was received on Friday noon; too late for this issue.

Last Wednesday evening Commander I. M. Holt, assisted by Officer of the Day, W. B. Munroe, installed the officers of Post 102 of Milton.

There are four aged citizens living in one house on Spear street. Three of them are over eighty years of age, and they are all healthy and happy.

The Road Commissioners have made arrangements with gentlemen in the several districts, to attend to the breaking out the roads in case of snow storms.

Jesse P. Worden, of Quincy, a contractor for painting, has filed a petition in insolvency with liabilities at $4,308.50. Assets: stock in trade, etc., partly mortgaged.

Several members of the Congregational Church, attended the memorial services of Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. Chapin, which were held in Braintree on Tuesday last.

There will be an oyster supper at Faxon Hall, on Thursday evening next, under the management of the Ladies' Aid Society connected with the Universalist Parish.

The J. W. Hall Hook and Ladder Co. will give their third assembly at Faxon Hall, on Wednesday evening next. Everything has been done to make this affair a grand success and a good time may be expected.

Mr. Joseph W. Lombard will sell on Tuesday next, at the house of Richard G. Elliott, on Hancock court, a desirable lot of household furniture, which is in excellent condition. Do not fail to read the advertisement.

The carpenters have nearly finished their labors on the vestry of the new Universalist Church, and the painters will commence their labors at once. Two weeks from to-morrow it is expected to be ready for church services.

Last Monday evening, notwithstanding the severe cold, a large party of ladies and gentlemen visited Mr. Albert A. Brackett, in East Milton, taking that gentleman completely by surprise. The surprise was planned by marriage.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson's course of sermons on "Original Christianity," is attracting considerable attention. The subject of to-morrow's discourse is "How the old blended with the new in early Christianity; or the accidental and permanent elements in Christianity. The public are invited.

The meeting of the Young People's Temperance Union at the Congregationalist Chapel, last Thursday evening, was a very interesting one. The lesson was taught by Mr. Carter, and the select readers, Mr. Snow were well rendered and quite entertaining. The music, both vocal and instrumental, was excellent.

Mr. Russ B. Walker's dancing school in Quincy begins on Feb. 10th at Faxon Hall. The Boston Post says, "he has been eminently successful as a teacher of dancing in Boston and many of the adjoining cities and towns." The Boston Journal says, "he is one of our most popular teachers, and perhaps better known than any other in this section."

COURAGE.

This is the title of a very pleasing and romantic drama given this week, for the first time at the Park Theatre, Boston. It has drawn large audiences and will be continued through next week.

The author, A. C. Gunter, presents the most dramatic and indeed romantic episodes through the history of the United States in recent years—the horror and pathos blended in Cuba's struggles. Through the skill of the dramatist the relentless warfare between the Cuban and the Spaniard and its tropical wealth of scene and passion are set forth in the cold light of our own civilization, while the loves and hates of all medieval intensity are brought into contact with all the refinements of life to-day. The plot, while really and indeed laboriously elaborated, is clear and unified in action, as it is simply an embellished leaf from the history of recent years in picturing the wrongs of the American gentleman, Howard Temple, who is betrayed into the hands of Spanish soldiers in Cuba and compelled to suffer disgrace, imprisonment, and all but death, for no crime. The dramatist represents all this as having been wrought by a villain, Ignatio Grey, who is acting as the agent of the Spanish Government. Miss Blanche Grey, a young New York heiress, has her suitors for her hand, Howard Temple, a young New York banker, whom she loves; the other, Ignatio Grey, who is the villain of the piece, and who is in love with Luis Sanguera, a young Cuban, living in New York. These two girls are devoted to each other. Temple is given to look after Luis's estates, and in this Ortiz sees his chance to sweep his rival from his path; he tests Blanche, and finding her quite a temple, gives him a letter to deliver in Havana, filled with such reasonable matter as will cause Temple's arrest and execution on his arrival in Cuba.

The total vote cast in Massachusetts, at the recent election, on the question of licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors, was 165,250, of which 88,323 were for license, and 76,933 against license. So, Massachusetts is a "rum" state.

New York city must be pretty well vaccinated, for upward of $10,000 was spent for virus last year.

Washington, Jan. 27, 1883.

The "beautiful" snow, followed by rain and sleet, producing sloppy and slippery streets, have made the past week one long to be remembered in Washington weather annals. It was a beautiful contrast with the preceding week, when the enjoyments of out-door life are considered.

Although the Senate, in its slow, mechanical way, does not make much progress with the tariff bill, that measure will not fail for want of supporters. The tariff reform idea seems to have obtained a strong hold upon the Republicans, and with what recruits they can gather from the Democratic ranks, the Republicans in Congress will be numerically strong enough to pass "some kind of a tariff bill." The House is preparing to take up this subject, as the Navy Appropriation bill will probably be passed to-morrow. According to the Republican Gazette and by the associate of the House, the bill will be introduced Friday evening designed to bring up the tariff bill immediately after the Naval bill is disposed of, and they will also endeavor to limit debate so that no time need be wasted. This bill, however, is not the tariff bill, but a measure to amend the tariff laws of Massachusetts under the laws of Massachusetts the assessors of the town of Quincy would have to tax the whole town fund, and that the income, already diminished by one quarter by the taxes in the hands of the townspeople, would be diminished by another quarter here. It is needless to add that he thought this too heavy a price to pay for the privilege of settling in the town of Quincy and forthwith gave up the idea of doing so.

The following cases have been disposed of since our last issue: Thomas King, of Weymouth, for selling intoxicating liquors. Found guilty and fined $50 and costs and sentenced to the House of Correction for six months.

Gordon Reed, of Weymouth, for a third drunk. Fined $10 and costs.

Patrick S. McDonnell, of Quincy, for admitting minors to his billiard room; second offence. Plead guilty and the case was continued until Saturday for sentence.

Richard Talbot, of Quincy, for an assault on W. F. Barrett. The plaintiff acknowledged satisfaction and the defendant was discharged on payment of costs.

Mary A. Madigan, of Randolph, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Found guilty and fined $100 and costs. Appealed.

John Souther, of Cohasset, on complaint of his wife, for threats of violence. He was ordered to give sureties in $300 to keep the peace for six months.

Edward Quinn, of Randolph, for the sale of intoxicating liquors. Case continued until this Saturday morning.

John Garvey, of Quincy, for keeping a liquor nuisance. Case continued until to-day.

Washington Letter.

Washington, Jan. 27, 1883.

Your correspondent "R." has recently been showing the evil effects of attempting to subject to taxation such evidences of title as stock certificates, bonds, notes, etc. A case which has recently come before the Supreme Court furnishes such an apt illustration of the pernicious working of this law that I cannot refrain from stating it. A family from another state was thinking of settling in this town; they had selected a suitable lot of land, and had ascertained the price at which it could be bought, and were seriously thinking of building a house. As they had no children to be educated at our public schools their residence here would not be to the town a single cent, and would have been an advantage, pure and unmixed. They would have given us a new house to tax, and by building it would have increased the taxable value of the land about it. Their expenditures would have been a benefit to our tradesmen. The rate of taxation in Quincy is high, but they were willing to pay it on such real estate as they should occupy. It happened that the income was derived from a piece of property held by a trustee who lived in another state. In his hands this property is heavily taxed to the last cent. On making inquiries as to the liability of this property to taxation here, the head of the family discovered that under the laws of Massachusetts the assessors of the town of Quincy would have to tax the whole town fund, and that the income, already diminished by one quarter by the taxes in the hands of the townspeople, would be diminished by another quarter here. It is needless to add that he thought this too heavy a price to pay for the privilege of settling in the town of Quincy and forthwith gave up the idea of doing so.

A Case in Point.

To the Editor of the Patriot:

Your correspondent "R." has recently been showing the evil effects of attempting to subject to taxation such evidences of title as stock certificates, bonds, notes, etc. A case which has recently come before the Supreme Court furnishes such an apt illustration of the pernicious working of this law that I cannot refrain from stating it. A family from another state was thinking of settling in this town; they had selected a suitable lot of land, and had ascertained the price at which it could be bought, and were seriously thinking of building a house. Poetry.
For the Patriot.
Midnight, Dec. 31.
BY J. E. THURBER.
Oh, faded Muse, within thy fancy lower,
Whom I worshipped in life's early spring,
While yet the bud had hardly known the flower,
Now to thy fading blossom sweetly sing.
The sweetest song is that, however brief,
Henceforth ascending, wakes the angelic choir,
When, with its strains, a ray of wisdom shines,
And nobler aspirations here inspire.
That verse is best in those exalted lines
Some hidden truth in nature is revealed,
When, with its strains, a ray of wisdom shines,
And all its plain that ignorance concealed.
Those tones are dear whose clear vibrating notes
At sunset's hour fall softly on the ear,
When heart to heart with its power descends,
Then is that soothing pressure doubly dear.
Oh, that some lay from a diviner pen,
Could utter such a word as the unknown shore,
And there, as if some voice from heaven again,
With loved ones gone through death's unsolved door.
What earthly minstrel on the strings of time,
Can strike responsive to the yearning heart,
Can sing to death's door, and then, as if again,
Can bludge the clock or cause the hour to start.
Ye, whose progressive faith new visions sees,
And ye, the dim hand of death, have made,
When, with its strains, a ray of wisdom shines,
And bludge the clock or cause the hour to start.
But faith, then, faith, ever soaring spirit,
Forever rising to return anon,
Why dost thou turn our day to darkest night,
Without a single ray to cheer us on?
Then quick thy response as in the past,
And bear the thought that he whose hand bestowed equal love directs the wintry blast,
Striped of the virtue hidden to earth,
When the departing spirit quits the breast,
Leaving to clay all essence of birth,
The world beyond can only take the rest.
What is that rest on which we fondly dote?
What is that rest that some where the soul
All is resolved in that we of us we go,
"An honest man's the noblest work of God."

For the Patriot.
A Summer Visit to Canada.
WAYSIDE NOTES, NO. 3.
I shall have to adopt for my motto, I think, "fretful lest," (make haste slowly). I am sure my patient readers must say that I am going to Canada
at a very slow pace, not having reached the Royal Dominion yet. It is said,
you know, that we can travel very fast
on paper; we can go round the world
in less than eighty days, as they do,
and we can plod along like a snail too,
if we cannot find the time to take the pen to help us make the journey on paper, as we took the steam engine, to speed our voyage on the land and on the sea.
I arrived safely in that quiet old town
of Eastport, in the good steamer City
of Portland. It was a delightful morning when we steamed into the calm,
cozy harbor. The landscapes and seascapes from every point of view were highly picturesque and attractive. The steep, rocky shores of Campbell head, overlooking the dashing waters gave a picture of a strong fort made by nature. The large hotels and handsome summer cottages peering out among the trees presented a picture grander and more charming than the artist could paint on canvas with highest skill.
In accordance with the Eternal fitness of things, this New England village is called Eastport. It is as far down East as it can be put to have a footing in Maine; just as Moosehead lake is as far west as it can be to have a place within the boundaries of the pine tree state. If you should start from this lake, with its pretty short Indian name, and run directly East till you had to stop without diving into the bay of Fundy, you would find yourself in Eastport. Maine is peculiar in this respect, that it is situated exactly midway between the Equator and the North Pole; so if you should leave Gaboon, in Africa, for a walk to the North Pole, Maine would be the half-way house where you would stop to take a rest.
Maine is a great state, too, as to its size and number of distinguished persons. It would take all the other five states of New England to make a state as large as Maine. Famous Scotland, with its eminent poets and philosophers, is no larger than Maine. At one time there were eight states whose governors were natives of Maine. It is true Mr. Blaine was born in Pennsylvania, but he achieved all his greatness
after he took up his residence in Maine,
the fine old state whose motto is ever inspiring—Dirigo (I direct).
Now Eastport is in this celebrated state, and is becoming renowned for its superior sardines. It took a Maine Yankee to find out that some things
could be done as well as other things in the fish business. Those nice little fish, done up in oil, and laid in so compactly in neat tin boxes, look so neat attractively, and then they are so good at once in a while, with a sprinkle of lemon juice on them, with a slice of home made bread and golden home made butter, butler which is made, not bought on the store. The sardines are the only kind of fish that I know of which are so tender and reliable that you can eat them bones and all. There are some things we do, and make so bones in doing them. This is one of an old story, and it is true. It is true how handy a box of sardines is for a comparison. When we are crowded into a horse-car, with hardly room to breathe in, it is our tongue's end to say, we say it: "packed as closely as a box of sardines."
The smart men in Eastport saw plainly that it was not necessary to go away to Sardinia, in the Mediterranean Sea, to get this delicacy, the ocean food. They examined the anatomy of the foreign sardine, and saw that it belonged to the herring family, which is the largest of the scaly families which grow and thrive in the waters of the globe. They knew the herring folk were not so good as the sardine folk
of Maine, and so they went for the juvenile portion of this fishy tribe, and gathered them in great multitude, and salted, or rather dried, them down in the regulation tin boxes, and started them with polite French, and sent them off by thousands and tens of thousands into the markets of the country and the world.
Now the grocer hands us a box of sardines direct from Sardinia, which means, in reality, direct from Eastport.
So the first thing you see when you
land in Eastport are immense sardine factories, five and six stories high, and the boys and girls so busy in putting up French sardines in Maine, and the sardine man, the proprietor of the business I mean, moves about like a whale
among his small fish, and gets them ready to be taken in by the million in Boston and New York, while he pockets the cash and the interest and industry. Who has a better right?
Eastport is the head centre of this business, which is constantly increasing.
The forests are getting cut short, but the fishes are growing long. When lumber gets low, the sardines will get high; when the timber falls the young herring will swim to the front and say:
"There is more money in me, you plainly see, than in your biggest hemlock tree."
New York, Jan. 1883.
THE DIFFERENCE. When an editor makes a mistake in his paper all the world sees it and calls him a fool. When a private citizen makes a mistake
nobody knows it except a few friends,
and they come around and ask the editor to keep it out of his paper. When a private citizen dies the editor is asked to write up his obituary notice and get leave out the bad. When the editor dies the private citizen says: "Now that old liar will get his deserts."—Oil City Derrick.

Educate the People.
A French statesman once said to John Quincy Adams: "France needs
a Washington!" Adams replied:
"France needs a people!" In our democratic government the Washingtons come from the people. Great leaders can never get very far in advance of the masses, especially in this true in all moral movements, the people must lead, or be ready to follow intelligently,
the chosen leaders.
Croakers and half-hearted temperance men tell us every day, "You cannot enforce your prohibitory laws, the people are not ready for them. You cannot make men abstinent by law and temperate by compulsion." The true temperance workers understand this quite as well as those who never do anything but croak. The most effective work done has been mainly in the line of education. If we take the standard of public sentiment in the time of Dr. Lyman Beecher, and contrast it with the advanced position of today, it will show wonderful progress.
The pulpits of our country are now generally filled with earnest advocates of the temperance reform, and their grand work of teaching the people cannot well be overestimated. The religious press, far from what it ought to be, is much better than it was. The daily newspaper, catching the advanced thought of the people, has taken a long stride forward; in some notable instances, leading daily journals are becoming fully committed to the temperance movement, and are doing good service in educating public sentiment.
Reformers and teachers are learning
the great lesson, that in converting the world it is wiser to begin with children and youth, rather than wait until character is formed and habits fixed.
Take care of adults and let children
shift for themselves is not the correct
theory, but rather take care of the children and the adults will take care of themselves. Some one has said "public opinion is formed not by influencing but by forming men." If public sentiment is not right upon any great leading question, it is mainly because we have failed to rightly teach the young.
If the men of the next generation are honest, it will be because the youth of
to-day are being educated to honesty.
In some way the boys and girls of
to-day must be educated in the principles of temperance; they must be taught correct ideas of the nature of alcohol, its effects upon the organs of the body and the brain; they must be taught what beer is, and something of the mischief it is doing; how the grog
shop affects the family and society;
how it brings poverty and all manner
of pain and suffering; how it makes heavy taxes and fills our jails and poor-houses; and that no one was ever made any richer, or happier, or better for its use, while millions have been destroyed.
What the young need to be taught on this question is not sentiment so much as facts. It is not so important to tell a moving story as to teach a principle which will stand by the whole life and shape, it may be, the whole character.—The Press.

The Editor's Stocking.
A stocking hung from the mantelpiece. "Twas decidedly poor and holy; but bad as it was, it belonged to a man—an editor worth something. It hung all night till the light of morn came dancing through the sashes; but alas, for the holy, alas for the man—'Twas filled to the top with ashes. Ashes of many a hope deferred, and dust of prostration—ashes of benefits conferred, and ashes of desolation. Woe to the man with the shattered sock—Oh, darn it all,
'tis shocking!" and woe to the fellow who filled it up—Alas for the editor's stocking!
Wouldn't Tell His Name.
A traveller was leaning at night against a railing at the Harper's Ferry railroad station. A locomotive came along, and he sprang lightly over the rail to escape possible danger. He thought it was a meadow on the other side, but knew his mistake when he struck in a muddy stream forty feet below. On being rescued he was asked his name. "I wouldn't tell you for a thousand dollars," he replied; "describe me simply as a fool."
WHAT KILLS. In the school, as in the world, far more rust than wear out.
Study is most tedious and wearisome to those who study least. Drones always have the hardest time. Grumblers make poor scholars, and their lessons are uniformly "hard and too long."
The time and thought expended in shirking, would be ample to master their tasks. Sloth, grumbling and worry kill their thousands, where over-study harms one. A curse rests on laziness and gluttony. By the very constitution of our being they are fitted to beget that torpor and dependency which chill the blood, deaden the nerve, enfeeble the muscles and de-range the whole vital machinery. Fretting, fidgeting, envy and anxiety are among the most common causes of disease. On the other hand, high aspirations and enthusiasm help digestion and respiration, and send an increased supply of vital energy to all parts of the body. Courage and work invigorate the system, and lift one into a purer atmosphere, above the reach of contagion.
The lazy groan most over their "arduous duties," while earnest workers talk little about the exhausting labors of their profession. Of all creatures, the sloth would seem to be the most worried and woe.—The Sanitarian.

An Agent's Dream.
On the afternoon of October 10th,
last, Messrs. F. Myers & Co., of 628 Broadway, New York, presented to President Arthur, at his New York residence, 123 Lexington Avenue, a copy of a remarkable and magnificent engraving, entitled "Our Presidents, 1789-1881," (copyright, 1882, by F.
Myers & Co.) After warmly commending the picture, the President bespoke
a copy also for the White House, and the picture elegantly framed, has accordingly been supplied—with the compliments of the publishers. On November 22d, General U. S. Grant, while present at his business office in the Equitable Building, Broadway, N.
Y., purchased a copy from a canvassing agent and appeared much pleased. Said the General and ex-President, referring to the portrait of himself: "That is a very good likeness of me. It is just as I look now, and my hair is just about as gray, and so grayer, than it appears
there, and" added the General, "General—yes, it is excellent—it is very good of Arthur—yes and there's Taylor, General Taylor—I never under him—that is a good one of him; indeed your picture is a good one generally. I am quite familiar with all the faces; I was so long
at the White House, where good portraits of all our Presidents are found. It is a good thing, and I am quite pleased to have one." Saying this General Grant, having paid the agent, left his office,
enroute for his up-town mansion, carrying his copy of "Our Presidents, 1789-1881," with him under his arm.
On the next day, ex-President B. B.
Hayes, received a copy of the plate at his home in Fremont, and he at once addressed a letter to the publishers expressive of his approval and gratification.
The high merit of this picture—the finest national portrait-group ever published—is established in the beauty of its conception, which has three cannot be assembled, in figure, for the first time, our twenty-one Presidents giving audience to the great nation over which they have been honored to preside. It presents them in one of the grand saloons of the White House, artistically portrayed in natural attitudes, in full length figures, each one clad in the style peculiar to himself in his day. The portraits are telling and life-like, and recall the memories of all. A singular feature is produced by thirteen clean-shaven faces, the custom of their times
while but four of the twenty-one were the now popular moustache. On the walls of the saloon hangs a well executed
picture of the surrender of Cornwallis, which in historical event. It is taken from the original painting in the Rotunda of the National Capitol. From the window of the room appears a fine
view of the National Capitol Building, surrounded by the gardens of the liberty, and affords an elegant and admirable subject for the homes of the people.
It may well be considered a standard
American picture.
The day dream of canvassing agents
may now be realized, for the sale of such a work will no doubt be a steady one, and something enormous. It is sold especially through canvassing
agents, and we understand that the publishers want agents in this locality
and in other parts. This affords a timely business opportunity for some of our enterprising citizens, who may find themselves at liberty to accept an agency.
In order to more rapidly introduce this fine work, full particulars with an agent's outfit, including the engraving, circulars, and a brief history of the Lives of the Presidents—every one of them—will, we are informed, be forwarded, charges prepaid, to those who apply with a view to an agency, and also at the same time remit one dollar to pay costs. All communications must be addressed to the publishers, F.
Myers & Co., Post Office Box 526, New York City. We advise those of our readers who become interested in the subject to send for an outfit at once,
for their own advantage, also that others may, through such agencies, possess themselves of copies of this happy production.
"Them Tuds is Done."
A young lawyer in a country town,
asked some of his friends to a game of cards in his room, to be followed by a lunch supper. Frogs were a new species of food in that latitude, and a dish of them cooked in the choicest way was the feature of the occasion. Supper time approached, and during a temporary lull in the conversation, the door
suddenly opened, and a Missian waiter
in a loud voice announced supper thus:—"Mr. E., them tuds is done, and supper is ready!"
That's Sarah.
Among the telephone stories floating about is the following: An old man would not believe he could hear his wife talk a distance of five miles by telephone. His better half was in a country store several miles away, where there was a telephone, and the man down
was also in a place where there was a similar instrument, and on being told
how to operate it, he walked boldly up and shouted: "Hello Sarah!" At that instant lightning struck the telephone wire and knocked the man down,
and as he scrambled to his feet he exclaimed: "That's Sarah every time."
On hearing that an acquaintance had hurried across from London to the Continent to avoid his importunate
creditors, George Selwyn observed:—It is a pious that will not be much relished by the Jews.

Soulless Prayers.

I do not like to hear him pray.
On Sunday he kneels down at his knees,
For grace to spend bright day.
Who knows his neighbor has no fear.

I do not like to hear him pray.
"Let blessings on the widow be."
Who never seeks her home to find.
"If want's o'ercome you come to me."

I hate the prayer you load and long.
That's offered for the orphan's weal.
By him who sees him cradled by wrong.
And thus is asked to work for loss.

I do not like to hear him pray.
With jeweled ears and silken dress.
Whose wretchedness tells all for loss.
And then is asked to work for loss.

Such pious falsehoods I despise!
The folded hands, the face demure,
Of those with sanctimonious eyes,
Who steal the earnings of the poor.

Those sainted faces that they wear
To church and for the public eye.
Hide things that are not on the square,
And wickedness done on the sly.

I do not like such soulless prayers!
If wrong, I hope to see forgiven.
Such prayers no angel upward bears—
They're lost a million miles from heaven.

Farm and Garden.

Raising Early Chickens.

To one who understands it, the business of raising early chickens is a very profitable one, but to one who does not understand it, it is not only very unprofitable, but also very trying to the disposition; for to have but two or three chicks taken from a hundred eggs, worth 50 cents a dozen, is not only a large per cent. loss of the capital invested, but the sight of the 97 or 98 rotten eggs, the two or three poor little chicks, and eight or ten mothers disputing their parentage, is enough to unsettle the good nature of the best disposition, if it does not break out in open rebellion, and create a desire to put the mother hens, and burn the hen-house to create heat enough to boil them tender.

This is a business that while some people may be learned from the experience of others, every one must rely principally on themselves. If one is careless, or negligent, he had better let the business of raising early, or even late chickens alone, for it is only by constant watchfulness and care, that success is attained.

One who has a love for the business and who possesses the right disposition, may soon learn the details, if they start with a full understanding of the general principles, among which may be named: First, location, which should be warm, dry, and sheltered from the cold winds, but at the same time dry and filled with sunshine. Second, the eggs should be from healthy birds that have been kept under the most favorable conditions. Third, the mothers should be not only healthy, but pet birds that are tame and possessing good dispositions. Fourth, the nests should be so located that the air will not draw under them, and also where dampness will not be gathered. A great mistake is often made by setting a hen in a barrel laid down; this gives the air a chance to draw under the nest, to a degree that usually prevents the eggs from hatching, unless dry earth is drawn up on the outside of the barrel. Fifth, the hen while sitting should be kept as quiet as possible, and provided with everything for her comfort. Sixth, when the chicks begin to hatch the temperature of the house should be kept at 70 or 75 degrees above the freezing point, and while the air should be kept as pure as possible, no cold blasts should be permitted to reach the chicks until they become strong, and old enough to care for themselves.—Mass. Ploughman.

Caring for Harnesses.

The average harness in the rural district is poorly cared for, and short-lived. Not infrequently it is found that the horse stable exposed to the ammonia generated from a pile of fermenting manure. The stable may be furnished with old specks with bedding or absorbents of some kind, but these are not promptly renewed, and there is a great waste of the most valuable constituent of manure. The harness has the benefit of the ammonia, and the effect is about the same as washing it with lye. The harness note, cracked and without frequent oiling comes to grief at an early date. The safer way is to have a place for the harness in the carriage house, or some building outside the stable. If the stable alone is available, it should be kept free from the smell of ammonia by the constant use of absorbents, sawdust, soda, road dust, straw, or refuse hay. A harness properly cared for and kept clean and pliable will last twice as long as one that is neglected. It is much cheaper to spend ten cents for neat's-foot oil, once in three months, than fifty cents at the harness maker's.—American Agriculturist.

Household Receipts.

SPICE CAKE. Take the yolks of four eggs well beaten, two teaspoons of baking powder sifted with two and a half cups flour, one cup sugar, one-half cup syrup, one-half cup milk, one-half cup butter, two teaspoons powdered cloves, one of cinnamon, one of allspice. Rub the spices well into the flour, add the syrup after the sugar and milk, and lastly the butter. Bake half an hour in a hot oven.

HOMINY MUFFINS. Two cups of boiled hominy, beat it smooth, stir in two cups of sour milk, half a cup of melted butter, one teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls sugar, add three well beaten eggs, one teaspoonful baking powder sifted with two cups flour. Pour in muffin rings and bake quickly.

A flannel cloth dipped into warm soap suds and then into whiting and applied to paint, will instantly remove grease and dirt. Wash with clean water and dry. The most delicate paint will not be injured, and will look like new.

If an artery is severed, tie a small cord or handkerchief tightly above it.

For bilious colic, soda and ginger in hot water. It may be taken freely.

Broken limbs should be placed in natural positions, and the patient kept quiet until the surgeon arrives.

Nervous spasms are usually relieved by a little salt taken into the mouth and allowed to dissolve.

Temperance.

The Alcohol Habit.

Another account has been given by one who passed the winter with a party in the North of America, as near the borders of the sea as they could reach. They were well supplied with food, and lived in a log house which had been built for them by our Canadian company. He made it a strict condition that they should go out upon strictly total abstinence principles. He would not have any spirit at all. As a party, their work through the winter was to make a series of magnetic observations, and it was necessary that the magnetic observatory should be at a short distance from the house in order to avoid the local attraction of iron. The officer said he was accustomed to go out at night from the house to the magnetic observatory, as it were to go across the street.

There he would make an observation and then return without putting on his great coat. I asked him how cold was the temperature to which he exposed himself. He said that the temperature in the log house was about fifty degrees above zero, and that outside it would sometimes be about fifty below zero. There was a change of a hundred degrees which he found he was able to endure for a quarter of an hour without putting on his great coat. This will show the kind of evidence that I proceeded upon.

Many of our Arctic voyagers have given me the same experience. Sir Joseph Hooker, who served with Capt. James Ross in his Antarctic expedition, about forty years ago, has given evidence to me of nearly the same kind. We have found the rationale of the action in the stomach to be an increase of the gastric juice. But why should it be increased in a healthy body? A healthy body secretes sufficient for its purpose. Why should we provoke it to a result not required for digestive action? We do this at the expense of subsequent loss. We lose afterward all that we seem to gain.

Now, what does muscular action depend upon? It is upon the burning of a certain amount of sugar in the muscles, and the amount burned is the measure of the stimulus to muscular contraction. Whether we experiment with the muscles of a frog freshly killed, or whether we get our knowledge in any other way, it comes to this, that muscle-sugar is burned up to produce what may be a fair measure for the amount of heat, the muscular is an exact equivalent of the heat in the carbon and hydrogen consumed. So the heat produced in a muscle, just like that in a steam engine, depends upon the amount of fuel. The muscular action may be increased by increasing the stimulus.

But the muscular action is accompanied by chemical change. The utmost that alcoholic stimulants can do is to give us a spurt, just as boat racers spurt when one is behind the other; but just afterward there is an increased feeling of fatigue, and the power of muscular stimulus is simply an antipathy of the amount of strength which can be used, like drawing our pay before it is due. It has to be made up afterward. When we work there is a feeling of fatigue, which I believe represents the amount of effete matter in the blood, which has to be got rid of.

Woman's Column.

Six women with babies met the other day and agreed to vote which was the noblest infant. Each child got one vote.

There are two charming lady dentists in Philadelphia, and young men are finding lots of cavities in their teeth and their pocket-books.

Anecdotes.

"Julia, my little cherub, when does your sister Emma return?"
"Julia—"I don't know."
"Didn't she say anything before she went away?"
"Julia—"She said if you came to see her that she'd be gone till doomsday."

"That butter is all right," said a boarding-house keeper; "it is firkin butter, and tastes a little of the wood, that's all."

"If that is the case," replied a boarder, who was a contractor, "I should like to get some of that wood to make railroad bridges out of."

"Why did you speak to that policeman? Are you acquainted with him?" asked Milligan's wife, as she and her husband were walking home from the theatre the other night.
"Oh, no! I don't know the man," replied Milligan; "it was simply my duty as a citizen to see if he was awake."

"And what do you call that?" asked the inquisitive visitor, pointing to a mutilated statue.
"That is a torso," replied the sculptor.
"H'm," muttered the inquisitive visitor, "but how did it become torso?"
He was tenderly kicked out.

"Father, I wish to live so as to show the world my contempt for wealth," remarked a young philosopher, who was just recovering from the effects of a fifty cent cigar.

"That's easy enough," said the old man, "become an editor."

A CARD.
TO THE LADIES.
Having met with great success in selling the Household Sewing Machine,
In Quincy and vicinity,
I WISH to say to those who have not already tried one that it is positively for their interest to do so. Read some of the facts. The Hosieryman has a High Arm
so does not crowd the work; has a Self-acting Needle and Self-threading Shuttle has four Casters, and a loose fly-wheel attachment for the bobbin without resisting the machine. $6. worth of thread
supplied free, and a lady teacher gives thorough instruction to all who desire.

Poetry.
Do As Near Right As You Can.
The world stretches widely before you,
A field for your muscles and brain;
And though clouds may often float o'er you,
And often come tempests and rain,
Be fearless of storms which o'ertake you—
Push forward through all like a man—
Good fortune will never forsake you
If you do as near right as you can.
Remember, the WILL to do right,
If used, will the evil confound;
Live daily by conscience, that nightly
Will be the reward and sound.
In contests of right never waver—
Let honesty shape every plan,
And live life of Paradise savor,
If you do as near right as you can.

Miscellany.
For the Patient
A Nautical Recommendation.
In my humble opinion, it is well and fitting for all, especially those who have passed the meridian of life, to occasionally turn aside from some secular spot, and occasionally call to mind the scenes of other days, and believe a tear to the memory of the early dead.
It is now nearly forty years ago, that after an absence of some eight months
I returned from a sea voyage to my parental home. I was welcomed by my sister and four brothers. Still one dear friend was wanting to complete the happy circle. I asked of that sister,
where is our friend and almost brother?
but the tearful eye and pallid cheek told the sad tale. I was pointed to the village churchyard. There he lay, sleeping beneath the willow tree, on one of the hills of his happy New England.

That Boy Again.
"Pa," said the Rev. Mulkin's son,
"Samson was a strong man, wasn't he?"
"Yes; Samson was the strongest man that ever lived."
"Tell me about him."
"It was intended that Samson should be the strongest man, and before he was born."
The bewildered expression of the child's face arrested the minister in his narration.
"Before he was born?" asked the boy.
"Yes before—that is before he was found in a boller sliver."
"Just like little sister."
"Yes; just before he was found, an angel appeared and foretold of his strength, saying that no razor
might touch his head."
"Was the angel afraid that the razor
would cut him?"
"No; the angel meant that his strength lay in his hair and that his hair must not be cut off."
"If I let my hair grow long can I lift more than I can now?"
"I don't know that."
"Are women stronger than men?"
"No."
"But they've got longer hair."
"Yes; they have longer hair."
"A woman couldn't whip you, could she?"
"No, not easily."
"Was Samson a Democrat?"
"I don't know."
"Did you know him?"
"I know if I was as old as you. I'd know if I was as old as that Samson killed?"
"One thousand."
"He was bad, wasn't he?"
"No."
"But when a man kills anybody he's bad."
"The Lord was with Samson."
"But the Lord says you mustn't kill anybody. Did Samson go to heaven?"
"I suppose so."
"He's the strongest angel there,
ain't he?"
"You are getting foolish again."
"But I want to know. Will you know Samson when you go to heaven?"
"I suppose so."
"But you won't fool around him,
will you? If he auster he'll beat you, won't he?"
"Go to your mother. The next time you attempt to question me about the Bible I shall whip you."—Traveler.

Taking the Starch Out.
Rev. W. Taylor, of Colfax, Indiana, is a large man, of dignified bearing,
and, when preaching, extremely sensitive to any disturbance of the propriety on the part of the congregation
being quite sufficient to throw him out of the track. He had, last year, in connection with his pastorate, a small congregation in the country, to which he preached semi-occasionally at a private house. The incident here recorded happened at this place, when a small but select audience was listening to one of Taylor's really animated sermons. As the preacher waxed warm
he observed some mysterious movement among the female gender which attracted his attention away from his sermon. He discovered the hostess collecting some live coals upon a shovel and preparing to march with them to an adjoining room. It was late in the afternoon, and by some clerical instinct
he thought the old woman was about to prepare his supper. He couldn't stand that.
"Stop, sister, stop," said he; "I shall not remain to supper, and you need not trouble yourself to prepare any for me."
"I ain't agoin' to," said the old lady in reply; "what's a woman here got for her?"
It need not be added that all the starch was very speedily taken out of that sermon.

Care of the Town Poor.
At the adjourned town meeting of March 27, 1882, it was voted that a committee be appointed to inquire into the causes of the alarming increase in the cost of supporting the poor in this town, and to report a comprehensive system of dealing with the same.
The circumstances leading to this inquiry and the appointment of your committee are perfectly well known. It is clearly within the memory of every tax-paying citizen of the town that for several years prior to the year 1881-82,
the expenditures for care of the poor,
had been growing to alarming degrees,
culminating in that year in the largest total expenditure of any year of the town's history; and reaching an amount which exceeds that expended for that purpose by any town of equal size in the Commonwealth.
Of course this state of things could not be long continued. The evil grew to a magnitude which could not fail to provoke inquiry and in that way has been worked for a time its cure. The following list of towns, comprising all the towns in the Commonwealth equal to, or exceeding Quincy in population, with the total amount expended for the year ending March 31, 1882, by each for care of poor, tells its own story:

Name.	Pop. 1880.	Total Expd.
North Adams,	10192	$4301
Attleboro',	11111	4846
Northampton,	12174	4680
Marlboro',	10126	5529
Waltham,	11711	8574
Fitchburg,	13384	9278
Woburn,	10928	10145
Chicopee,	11325	10236
Weymouth,	10571	11177
Quincy,	10629	11859

It will be seen by the foregoing table
that while Quincy ranks eighth in scale
of population, in scale of pauper expenditure it ranks first. Surely this is an unjustifiable pre-eminence and may well justify the thorough investigation into the whole subject, which the town has authorized. Your Committee have therefore carefully examined the town
documents that pertain to the past administration of its charity, with a view of obtaining such light as those documents might disclose. To mark the steps of the sure and steady growth of pauper expenditure the following table has been prepared.

Year.	Total Cost of Poor in Almshouse.	Total Cost of Poor Out of Almshouse.	Total Cost of Poor.
1865	$1977.54	$1808.88	$3786.42
1866	2904.96	2652.99	5557.95
1867	3667.24	1706.84	5374.08
1868	2769.77	2534.31	5304.08
1869	2410.27	2321.83	4732.10
1870	2645.52	2176.96	4822.48
1871	2042.67	2212.12	4254.79
1872	3231.49	1688.67	4920.16
1873	3679.84	3088.48	6768.32
1874	3434.75	2667.08	6101.83
1875	3691.51	3266.96	6958.47
1876	4149.01	3527.36	7676.37
1877	3880.56	3880.83	7761.39
1878	3138.15	6352.83	9490.98
1879	3106.51	8329.54	11436.05
1880	428.66	7171.47	7600.13
1881	6546.93	7986.14	14533.07

These figures have been taken from the successive town reports, which are open to inspection by anybody, and which reveal an increase of expense on account of care of the poor during the last decade (to go no farther back) of over 200 per cent. But large accounts are the figures for the year 1881-82 they are only partially stated in the table above.
An examination instituted by your Committee into the accounts of the present Overseers of the Poor brought to light the fact that bills contracted in the year 1881-82, amounting in the aggregate to the large sum of over $2500
were unpaid, and laid over for insertion
in the accounts of the present year.
Thus it is necessary to add to the sum set forth in the table (viz. $11359) the further sum of $2500.
But even this total does not represent the true state of the case. Readers of this report will notice in the table above given a certain amount credited to the almshouse account by reason of the labor of its inmates on the highways. This item is always included in reports on cost of the almshouse establishment, the burden of which is made to appear considerably lessened thereby. Thus in the year we are considering, (viz 1881-82) we find an amount $3064.96 stated in the report
as the value of the labor of the paupers (and the use of horses and teams belonging to the almshouse) on the highways. Now it is hardly necessary to state that this item is largely fictitious.
No one who is acquainted with the actual facts in regard to the labor of the poor upon the highways supposes for a moment that this item represents actual value received to near the amount stated. The very fact that the larger the credit given for pauper labor the better the showing for the almshouse account, furnishes a sufficient explanation of the appearance of this item in the yearly accounts, in the exaggerated
form it assumes. Your committee, therefore, are of the opinion, after giving the subject a very careful consideration that no error will be made, if the amount credited to the almshouse for labor on the highways be reduced at least one-half, so that the account for the year (1881-82) may be set out as follows:

Cost of poor in almshouse,	$5546.93
Out-door relief,	7986.14
Bills contracted but unpaid and laid over	2500.00
	$16,033.07
Deduct value of pauper labor on highways	1500.00
Net cost of care of poor,	$15,433.07

But it is not the extraordinary developments of any one year which form
the subject of your Committee's investigation, but rather the system itself,
which makes such developments possible. Attention is accordingly directed to the mode in which the assistance of the town has been given to the poor outside of the almshouse, as furnishing a principal cause for the large yearly expenditure on pauper account. Of course all our citizens are acquainted with the general system of out-of-door relief, as it had been carried on in recent years, up to the time of the last annual town meeting. By giving people in general your Committee's (real or assumed) orders on the grocers and the provision dealers of the town, by supplying them with coal in winter, by paying their rent, etc., and then by charging the whole bill to the town, the item for expense for out-of-door relief has been augmented to the formidable total we see. Though the public may be presumed to be aware of this system
in its general features, it may be doubted if they are cognizant of the extravagance into which it was leading the town.

Of course it is a matter of fact, the year dependent upon the assistance derived from the town had become larger and larger, many individuals claiming as a matter of right a kind of annual subsidy.
Unquestionably, so long as the town

matter in charge reported as follows,
and the conclusions arrived at by them
are so entirely similar to those arrived at by us, that we give them in their own words:
"The system of providing for the poor by means of an almshouse has been in operation in this town about five years, and whilst the poor have been better taken care of, the town by the arrangement has saved more than $4000. The experiment has succeeded beyond our most sanguine expectations, both as it respects the better condition of the poor and the reduction of expense. If, however, these benefits are to be continued the system of providing for the poor only in the house must be strictly adhered to; if you depart from it in any instance, how you will discriminate? How can you justly refuse to all who may require your aid
and indulgence you grant to a few?
The evils of pauperism, the abuses and remedies—have been the subject of legislative investigation, and it appears
by a very able report on the pauper laws made to the Legislature at their last session, by an intelligent committee who have examined every phase of information obtained from a large proportion of the towns in the state, that the expenditure for the care of the poor, and the abuses connected with it, are such as to demand the most careful consideration."

Out of all modes of providing for the poor, the most wasteful, the most expensive, the most injurious to the character of the poor, and the most injurious to the character of the town,
is that of supplying in the town, these little evils have all been provided for in good homes, many of them in private families, where they may have a fair opportunity to become worthy and useful members of the community.
The vote under which your Committee was appointed directed that a comprehensive system be reported for dealing with the whole subject of the pauperism of the town. After having carefully looked over the whole field, and having examined the workings of the system as it stood and carried out during the past year, your Committee feel compelled in saying that this system faithfully administered appears to them to contain all, or nearly all, the desirable features of a good practical scheme of poor relief.

The duties of the Overseers of the Poor have been separated from those of the Surveyors of the Highways, and the accounts of the two have in no way been run the one into the other. They should be kept distinct. The town of Quincy has wholly passed that period of municipal development in which the roads can be properly cared for by pauper labor, for which they are charged and the almshouse credited, at that rate which would be paid for absolutely worthless work. Therefore,
in future, there shall be charge of the roads,
the accounts of the roads and accounts
for care

The Painter of Ghent.

On Washington's birthday the Quincy Dramatic Club will give a representation of the above play on the occasion of the Universalist Levee, and as all their previous entertainments have been received with favor, there is little doubt that they will be greeted by a full house. The play is a comedy, and contains a short synopsis of the play might be of interest to our readers, we have procured the following account of it:—The opening tableau discovers Roderick, the mad painter, seated, in gazing at a picture which Ichabod, the hunchbacked idiot, is bringing, hoping to sell to Roderick at a fabulous price, knowing that it is the portrait of his child,—a picture that Roderick has sought for many years and in many ways to recover. Roderick understands the Jew's old trick, and in an intended effort to outwit him, he pretends to repent his knavery. Anson, a friend to Roderick, sees that Ichabod is bringing on one of Roderick's mad fits, and bids him to desist. At this moment, and as Anson says, "in happy time, another Father Francis arrives to minister to the Jew's ailments, and to bring tribute to Ichabod, the Jew, whose greed is thereby made to soften, and he promises to give the Father Francis a donation for the Christians. Father Francis, hoping that the influence of Euphenia, a poor woman who has been the cause of Ichabod's husband's pardon (he being a prisoner), made by her own misery a healthful effect upon Roderick, sends a messenger to the convent from her. On her arrival at the house, the discovery is made that she is not only the daughter of Roderick, but the cause of his madness. She is then taken to the madhouse at once, but is retained by the Father, who by an ingenious plot brings father and daughter together. Roderick recovers his senses, and overcome with joy, falls asleep with his daughter in his arms.

ago at his death. He was the controlling spirit in the brilliant Richmond and Danville campaign of two years ago, and upon the inauguration of the Georgia Pacific scheme sold his Danville stock and bought heavily in the new company. He was a strong supporter of the Georgia Investments. There were four Perkins brothers, all of whom were bankers. Their home was Athens, Pa., and they came to New York poor, but thrifty and energetic, and each amassed a fortune. Mr. Perkins' early death is the type of the quick rise and fall of the speculative man, and when his life was broken took a rest in spasms of travel. He leaves a fortune of about $3,000,000, but that don't compensate for dying at thirty-nine.

2 A re-districting of the Masonic lodges of the state has just been made by the Grand lodge, under which new arrangements the lodges in this vicinity are brought together as District No. 24, and placed under the especial supervision of R. W. Baalis Sanford, of Brockton as district deputy grand master. The eight lodges in the district are Fellowship of Bridgewater, chartered in 1797; Rural of Quincy, 1801; Norfolk Union of Randolph, 1819; Orphan's Hope of Weymouth, 1825; Paul Revere of Brockton, 1857; Delta of Weymouth, 1869; St. George of Camello, 1878; Satucket of East Bridgewater, 1882.

Many of the wealthiest men in New York began poor. Jay Gould was a cowboy, James R. Keene came from England with $20 in his pocket, Rufus Hatch began by dealing in "garden sass," D. Appleton kept a grocery store, James Watson Webb was a country clerk, Henry Villard was a reporter, Leonard W. Jerome was a printer, H. B. Claflin was a Vermont school teacher, Charles O'Connor was born of the poorest of Irish parents, and Peter Cooper was a hatter's apprentice.

SHORT WRIGHT. It has been discovered that a very large amount of Each coin recently minted in New Orleans, is deficient in weight and will have to be recoined. A re-assay shows that from $20,000 to $100,000 worth of one-dollar gold pieces, representing the work of several months, is thus deficient, the shortage in each coin being about twenty-five cents. An investigation will be made.

Mr. Henry Butler, of Hancock, Ind., who has been failing in health for the past two years with a bad cough and emaciation, and who has tried several physicians without benefit, a few days ago coughed up a cherry stone that must have lodged in his lungs at least two years ago. His cough is now much better.

A FREAK OF NATURE. Mr. J. T. Brisler of Canton, has a curiosity which he has preserved in an alcohol—a perfect human thumb, fully developed, just above the dew-claws. The hog to which it belonged was raised in Canton and was killed about six weeks since. The foot is certainly a remarkable curiosity.

BLACK PEPPER. The largest fruit seller in New Orleans, on being asked what became of all the cocoon shells, replied that he sent annually 1,500,000, to New York, to be ground up with black pepper.

DID SHE DIE?
"No," said he, "and suffered and longed to die all the time for years, the doctors doing her no good; and at last she was cured by this New Orleans pepper." "How thankful we must be for that medicine,"

For the Patriot.
Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12, 1883.

As the Forty-seventh Congress approaches its adjournment, both houses are found still wrestling with the monster Tariff. Congress differs from the tariff commission it created. The Senate battles against its finance committee. The House, on the other hand, has a committee of ways and means recommending neither party can agree in its caucus either house. The house cannot agree as to the constitutional power over the question of revenue. Indeed nothing has been done, and any one who would expect antagonisms everywhere. But seventeen more working days are left, and the successor of this House, whenever it meets in March or December, will have a Democratic majority of nearly eighty. That will not be a body in which to enforce Republican policies. It is unstatesman like to leave this question in the wind for another year, deranging the business relations of the country, and this session calls for heroic resolve. During the past year, and uncommonly busy session, the House has spent much valuable time in honoring an unusual number of deaths of members by obituary speeches and resolutions. It is a waste of time, and has been addicted to sentimental indulgences of this kind, and as the custom has attracted much attention from the press of the country, it has been suggested the practice be abolished altogether, and that the House make a strong effort to suppress its overwhelming grief on these occasions and continue with the people's business.

The Senate has given its time to hard work, and has passed a large number of the tariff bill. A conference of the Republican caucus committee of the Senate was held Saturday to determine which of the various measures now pending in the Senate shall be regarded as the most important, and to agree to what, after the tariff measure shall have been disposed of. It was virtually agreed that as the shipping bill presents greater claims for precedence than any other measure of late introduction, it should be called up first. The position of the tariff and appropriation bills.

Many excellent bills have been introduced in each house of Congress within the last few weeks, and it may be regretted that they must go down as heaps of rubbish at the close of the session.

Whatever else the historian may feel moved to say of the present Congress will be the last for which he will be compelled to admit that it had an immense lobby. A lobby of such magnitude proportions that it was to Congress proper as the tail of the last comet was to the nucleus thereof. Old members of Congress, and even those who had winter in ahead of anything seen in Washington for many years. Ex-members of Congress avail themselves of the privilege accorded ex-members the freedom of the floor—to openly give themselves to the furtherance of all of jobbery. This abuse of courtesy excited an indignation in several states. Fighters, that may result in an explosion.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Carlisle, of Kentucky, are conspicuous rivals for Democratic leadership, and the daily exhibition of their struggles affords amusement not only to the galleries and floor, but to the country generally.

Mr. Carlisle has a strong support by a high protective constituency, and dares not let himself fully out, while Mr. Carlisle understands the power of the protective element, and expresses a free trade ideas too freely. Both may live to learn the benefits of a strictly limited record.

Some politicians are rejoicing at the advent of Lent, because they think the President, to a considerable extent, reerved of his duties as chief of social educators, will have time to attend to long delayed appointments, such as district commissioner and the civil service commissioners. There is really much perplexity about the selection of the latter. Mr. Dorman B. Eaton is spoken of as chairman of the commission, but prominent civil service reformers prefer to have Mr. Graves of the redemption bureau of the Treasury Department. But no one can predict what the President will do in the matter, for he is undoubtedly the most reticent man who has ever occupied the White House. He listens very patiently to everything that may be said in favor of certain persons for offices, and asks many ques-

sons, but will not express himself in advance of action, and in regard to public matters and appointments, absolutely keeps his own counsel, until he orders the papers to be made out.

ADAMS.

A UNIQUE BOOK. The records of our Shore Commandery of Knights Templar from the date of its institution in 1870 to the present time have just been bound in one volume and made a book which probably cannot be equalled by any similar institution in the state. The book is the work of Mr. Charles N. Marsh, who, in transcribing the records, has put in some of his best work in the way of penmanship, and further embellished it with portraits of the past commanders of the South Shore Commandery and of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island and of deceased members. The title-page, in colored inks, is especially attractive. The paper is extra heavy, red-lined on the margin, and somewhat larger than a royal octavo page. The ruling was done by R. P. Laines of Cornhill, Boston. The volume is richly bound in Russia, L. F. Lawrence being the binder. The book is almost entitled to rank as a work of art, so elegantly has it been gotten up. —Hingham Journal.

A KNOWING HORSE. There is a horse in Oglethorpe, Ga., that is either superstitious or has a dislike for odd numbers. Under no circumstances will he be ridden by more than an even number of persons, no matter how light they may be.

Winthrop.

Winthrop forms the northeastern shelter of Boston Harbor; it is beautifully diversified by hills, valleys and has about eight miles of beach frontage, while its area is only about one thousand acres. It is almost entirely free from the foreign element; it is a warm temperate town, facts to which the delightful peacefulness of the beach villages may be attributed.

Winthrop is already rich in summer resorts, the principal ones being Ocean Park, Sunny Side, Cottage Park and Crystal Bay. The latter is a beautiful spot of all for summer cottages has recently been purchased by an enterprising citizen of Quincy, and is known as "Great Head" or Green Hill. It is situated on the eastern side of the Boston, Winthrop and Point Shirley Railroad, about midway between the village of Ocean Spray and the celebrated Taft's hotel at Point Shirley, and embraces an area of about thirty acres, exclusive of the hotel grounds.

It is one of the most delightful spots for a summer resort on the Atlantic coast, and one of the most attractive features in the Boston Harbor. The view from the summit of the cliff is charming, and the surrounding woods, beaches, Lynn, Nahant, Swampscott, the Saugus Hills on the north and the entire Blue Hill range on the south, Boston and vicinity, the harbor and an unobstructed ocean view, abundant facilities for surf bathing, fishing, boating and all the most desirable attractions for the summer visitor are here to be found.

It has long been the wish of visitors and residents not to be obliged to travel to come on the market in cottage lots; this valuable property is now offered to the public in large or small lots at reasonable prices. Plans are now in execution following the proposed avenues, and other improvements to develop the property, to make it one of the most picturesque beach resorts in the vicinity of Boston. Ornamental walks, drives, and the new road, sidewalks built, &c., and no expense will be spared to make the village first-class in every respect.

It is not proposed to follow the example of real estate companies and offer the lots at public auction. The property to be sold subject to the following restrictions: 1st—No intoxicating liquors to be sold on the premises; 2d—Houses to cost at least one thousand dollars; 3d—No houses to be erected nearer than ten feet of the street to the other building houses in accordance with the above restrictions the Boston, Winthrop and Point Shirley railroad to issue a season ticket over their road for the entire summer season, and the demand for lots is great, and the restrictions, those contemplating purchasing should select at once. The Boston office is at No. 85 Devonshire street, Boston, room 23, where plans and additional information can be obtained.

W.

THE no-license demonstration in Mechanics' Association building, Boston, on Thursday, Feb. 22d, in honor of that sterling friend of temperance, Gov. St. John of Kansas, promises to be a grand affair. It is signed by large numbers of leading men representing all parts of the state, and is headed by ex-Gov. Long.

RICHARD WAGNER. This eminent musical composer died on the 13th inst., in Venice. His works had come to be known as well in this country perhaps as anywhere in the civilized world, and no where were more highly appreciated. In his death the world has lost one of its brightest geniuses.

NEW DRESS. The Woman's Journal has donned a new and handsome dress, which has added new beauty to its heretofore fine appearance. It is ably edited by a corps of the best female talent in the country, and is one of the best printed papers in Boston.

FLOODS. Many towns and cities along the Ohio and Wabash rivers have suffered severely from terrible floods this week. Thousands of families have been rendered homeless, and millions of dollars swept away.

THE ESTATE OF THE LATE REV. DR. MERCER OF NEWPORT, which, soon after his death, was estimated at $200,000, is now found to amount to over $1,000,000. He has been taxed for $10,000.

 A building owned by Leonard J. Joy and occupied by William Farmer, on Middle street, East Weymouth, was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning. Loss about $750; insured for $450.

 The Town Treasurer of Medway, received a package recently, containing eight hundred dollars. It was conscience money," and goes into the treasury.

 The pension bill reported to congress, appropriates $86,575,000 and reapropriates $15,800,000 unexpended

To any one in want of a salaried position with an established firm, we call attention to the advertisement of Messrs. G. Chase & Co., headed "we want," in another column. Send to them for their terms—it may pay you. 17w

Temperance Rally.

There was a nice audience at the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, at the rally given under the auspices of the Granite Temple of Honor. The audience was called to order at about half past seven, and for a few moments had the pleasure of listening to some stirring remarks from Thomas King, Jr., the president officer of the evening.

Rev. R. T. Sawyer, who had been invited to give the address of the evening, was then introduced by Mr. King. He delivered a very lengthy and able address, which was listened to with marked attention. We give below a short synopsis of his address:

"We come to an old subject with a new interest. As the alphabet is necessary in language, so is the alphabet of morals, including temperance, essential to a good life and social order. I will give seven reasons why I should vote No. Equally binding with all others.

"First, because the ballot is a sacred and potent instrument in the hands of free men, and I am accountable to my reason, conscience, fellow-men, and God, as to the manner in which I fulfill this great trust. In the second place, the burden and waste of the drinking habit compel me to do all I can to suppress the traffic. Thirdly, alcohol shortens human life, and begets impaired faculty and power in posterity.

In the fourth place, alcohol is the instrument of evil purpose; in corrupt politics; in league with the brothel, the aid of the gambler; the foe of the Sabbath, the schools and religion. Fifthly, it is the destroyer of home, that most sacred place on earth, and everyone who cherishes it should be anxious to enforce his conviction with the ballot. Sixthly, the traffic fills our almshouses, causing loss of manliness and self-respect, and exercising a degrading influence on community. And lastly, alcohol excites the passions, feeds on the lower nature, clouds reason, leads to lust and murder, and makes its victim a murderer. For these reasons let every one vote No."

At the conclusion of Mr. Sawyer's address, the president introduced Rev. D. M. Wilson, who made a short, telling speech, appealing forcibly to the Scotch and Irish. For want of time, Rev. Edward Norton was excused from saying a few words in favor of the good cause.

The speaking was interspersed with excellent singing by Mrs. C. P. Tirrell, Mrs. Gurney and Mrs. R. T. Sawyer, which was greeted with encores.

People's Course.

The dramatic performance of last Saturday evening was not altogether satisfactory. The company was new to the business; the amateur side of it was rather prominent. The members were earnest about their work, but they did not know their parts at all well; they did not speak loud enough, and they did not know how to dispose of themselves while on the stage, otherwise they did tolerably. The committee take to themselves no great amount of credit for the part of the entertainment comprised in the play. They were not accurately informed regarding the company. The music was good—the singing by the children being especially unique.

The committee take pleasure in announcing that this evening Dr. William Everett will deliver his lecture. He has had it in preparation for some time, and it will contain his carefully considered thought. As to the manner in which it will be presented the citizens are well aware that they will listen to a brilliant performance. His theme is "Work and Wages"—one theme which concerns every one, the laborer as well as the capitalist, the housekeeper as well as the bread-winner. We anticipate a large audience.

BIRTHDAY PARTY. A few of Mr. Charles P. Tirrell's friends met by invitation of Mrs. C. P. Tirrell, at her residence, on Goff street, on Tuesday afternoon, to offer their congratulations to that gentleman, who has on that day reached his eighty-third birthday. Mr. Tirrell seemed to be enjoying excellent health, and if it were not for his blindness, which he would be yet performing his usual duties as well as the capitalist, the housekeeper as well as the bread-winner. We anticipate a large audience.

Among those present were several singers, who in days of yore mingled their voices with Mr. Tirrell in the sweet melody of old palm tunes, and when some of these familiar old pieces were sung, some seemed to enter into the spirit of the songs with so much enthusiasm as Mr. Tirrell. Among the guests was Rev. Mr. Sawyer, who was invited to make a few remarks, which he did in a very feeling and pleasant manner, congratulating the venerable gentleman on being surrounded by so many of his friends on this anniversary.

Supper hour arriving, some twenty or more of the guests were invited to the hospitality of the hostess, and sat down to a bountiful laden table, and partook of a feast of good things.

The sickness of Mr. C. P. Tirrell interfered with the assembling of a large party, but a general invitation is extended to all of Mr. Tirrell's friends to visit him, and they will be sure to receive a warm welcome.

LEVEE. The annual festival given by the Universalist Society on the evening of Washington's birthday was very largely attended; some six to seven hundred assembled to enjoy the festivities of the evening. The entertainment by the Quincy Dramatic Company was very nicely presented giving much credit to all who took part. The music was excellent but for want of room we were unable to go into details. The town warrant, temperance and political articles are pressing our columns this week.

TAKE NOTICE. The stockholders of the Old Colony Railroad Company will hold a special meeting at the United States Hotel, Boston, on Monday March 4th, as will be seen by notice in another column.

Quincy Point Items.

Last Saturday evening a number of gentlemen interested in the C. U. Church met at the residence of Rev. J. L. Harris to view the plans for altering and improving the church. A disposition to contribute quite liberally was made, but no definite action was taken. It was however thought advisable to call a meeting of the members of the church Monday evening, and in response to that call a majority of the members met in the church to consider what action was necessary to advance the interests of the parish. As is well known, this church has been of late of an independent order, not being connected in conference with any other church organization, and the present pastor, at the meeting Monday evening, explained the advantages to be derived from coming into fellowship with other churches, and after some discussion it was voted to change the present organization into a Congregational Church, there being only one dissenting vote. There will be a parish meeting next Monday evening when the society will be asked to endorse this action, and the proposed alterations in the building were partially explained but their further consideration was postponed for one week. There seems to be a feeling existing in the minds of many of the members that if any special exertion is made in this direction, they are in the spiritual rather than to the temporal welfare of the people, and while all these improvements and changes may be very desirable and convenient, yet the main object for which the church exists should not be kept so much in the background. While the latter is true, it is not to be denied that more people will attend public worship held in an attractive and convenient building than in one that is old and dilapidated, and it follows that when more people are brought under religious influences, the more will be the opportunities for conversions. We think this is the present pastor's firm belief, and that the idea is a practical one is beyond dispute.

Rev. Mr. Norton, who has been seen for some time an evening, assembled last Sunday evening in Christian Union Church, to listen to a sermon by Rev. J. L. Harris upon the "Life and Character of Abraham." The discourse was presented in a very interesting manner, and among the lessons to be learned from it were "that there should be less questioning of God's commands, and more faith in His promises." Next Sunday evening the subject will be "The Character of the Jews."

Sunday afternoon services were held over the remains of Mr. John Clapp, who died last week of consumption. The body was then removed to Marshfield for interment.

The social of the Ladies' Aid Society was held Thursday evening at the residence of Mrs. Dr. Harlow. Quite a number of people were present, but not so many as usual, owing to other attractions elsewhere.

Remember the Republican caucus next Wednesday evening.

The fair held in the vestry of the Baptist Chapel the past week attracted large numbers of people every evening, who came from near and far to give substantial encouragement to the enterprising society for whose benefit it was held. The room was very tastefully decorated, and the articles for sale were numerous, and of a good quality. The Chapel (a small paper brought for the occasion) was quite a bright light-sheet, and the profits from the sale, added to the receipts of the fair, will give the society a handsome sum. Rev. Geo. B. Lawton has taken an active interest in this affair, and to him much credit is due for the successful result.

We believe a new church should be built instead of trying to alter the old one. In all probability, any change in the old building would never give satisfaction, while a new one could be built to answer all purposes.

SURPRISE PARTY. On Wednesday evening some 150 ladies and gentlemen from this town visited the residence of Mr. B. C. Clark, at Sayre Hill, to spend an evening with Mrs. William D. Smith, the mother of Mrs. Clark. The party was gotten up as a surprise to Mrs. Smith, and that lady was greatly astonished to see so many of her old friends gathered around her. The evening was pleasantly spent in the enjoyment of social conversation, pleasing games, &c.

A very handsome easy-chair was presented to Mrs. Smith by her friends, as a testimonial of their good wishes and friendship. Other members of the family were also kindly remembered. To add to the pleasures of the occasion, a bountiful supper was served, to which the whole party did justice. After the party the feast of good things, the enjoyments were resumed, the festivities, and it was not until the hands of the clock warned them that daylight was fast approaching that they donned their wraps and bade their friends adieu, having passed a few hours in a most enjoyable manner.

TEMPERANCE ENTERTAINMENT.—The Granite Commandery of the Golden Cross of this town will give a very interesting entertainment at the Town Hall, on Monday evening next, to consist of nine addresses by Rev. Mr. Gifford, Samuel R. McCready, William H. Solomon and others. Vocal and instrumental music will enliven the occasion. Miss Carrie Hale will favor the evening with some excellent selections in reading.

NO LICENSE.—Our readers will find in our columns to-day an appeal to the voters of the town, signed by several hundred of our citizens, urging them to vote for license at the coming election. Quincy should take no backward step in the temperance movement, and we will say that this appeal will also be published next week, and all those who would like to add their names to the list will please send them to the editor of the Quincy Patriot.

Address to Voters.

Fellow Citizens.

DEAR PATRIOTS:—In last week's paper you will find the vote of the Quincy portion of the Committee appointed last year to inquire into the causes of the alarming increase of the cost of supporting the poor. I think you were mistaken in stating that the Committee made the cost of supporting the poor for the year ending Feb. 1st, 1882, over $15,000. If I understand the report the amount is given $11,350.11; but it will not surprise me if I made the mistake.

And now what is the result? Have we not had in many respects a better condition of affairs in the town? Have we not been less? Have not our saloons been opened its door and invited to enter? Has there not been less of drunkenness, and of all the evils which spring from the liquor traffic?

There is, we think, in the minds of the vast majority of our people but one answer to such inquiry, namely, that the past year's trial has proved conclusively that it is better for the financial prosperity, social order and moral health of the town, not to grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors.

Now, as I sincerely think, you are called to vote again upon the question: "Shall licenses be granted for the sale of intoxicating liquors in this town?"

We appeal to you, therefore, to hold what has been gained, so good a cause, and respectfully urge you to move again to the forefront of the town's only Commonwealth with your banner of temperance legislation.

When British life insurance companies, after forty years' experience, pay to twenty-three per cent. over what is paid to moderate drinkers. Temperance means business, business success, and the future of the town.

Then what is more, this is no time to go backward in any grand movement for the uplifting of society. The voices in the air to-day cry "Forward!" And, Fellow Citizens, seeking the best welfare of our town, there rests upon you, in this decision, a greater than ordinary responsibility.

To you, holding a ballot in your hand, is committed in this thing a sacred trust, and our earnest appeal to you is that in the light of past experience, in the name of business prudence, and out of desire for the highest good of fellow men, you will answer this question coming before you on election day: "Shall we be held through corruption, or with partiality, he is irresponsible to the people, and is in need of temporary relief, and is able and willing to refund the loan given by the town when he is in circumstances to do so. Such things occur every year."

At present, any one needing relief can apply directly to one of the Overseers of the Poor, who are all men well-known, and easily approached. Under the proposed vote, the poor person in applying to one of the Overseers of the Poor, must procure a written paper from them, and then look up the Overseers of the Poor to get relief. Who those officers are, no one knows; where their office is located is a mystery; by the time all the red tape required by the operation would be untangled, a well person would be sick, and a sick person would be more than likely to die. No one can say how long this board is going to exist; if the present officers will hold office for this month, or this year. The present officers, of course, are prudent, careful and charitable; but can any one answer that the officers of this board, if it should exist for a few years, would not be as easily duped as any board of Overseers Quincy has ever elected?

If the board of Overseers of the Poor to be elected next March will not be honest and capable, the citizens can only blame themselves, and remedy the evil next year; but it is to be hoped that the town of Quincy will have more self-respect than to give any charge of their poor to an irresponsible body, over which the town can never exercise any control.

We have heard the old story of the mountain labor, but even the mountain did not bring forth such a very small mouse as this report.

CHARGE. Mrs. Adam Vogel came near meeting with a serious accident on Monday last, by falling from a horse.

There is a large amount of sickness in West Quincy, at the present time.

The fair which was held at the Methodist Church, last week, was largely attended and proved a success financially.

REPORTER. The following criminal cases have been before Judge Humphrey since our last issue:

THE ELECTION.

There was much interest felt in the annual town election on Monday last, and the largest vote ever cast, with the exception of that at the state election last fall, was thrown. There was great excitement manifested on the temperance question; also, who should be the Selectmen; and whether the town would elect a new committee.

The meeting was called to order by the Clerk, George L. Gill, Esq., at 8 o'clock. The attendance at that hour was unusually large, both parties having notified their voters to be on hand early, and thereby secure the victory. The Republicans wished to elect John Q. Adams, Esq., as Moderator, and then proceed with voting, for the various town officers required by ballot, as quickly as possible, so that they might be able to go to the polls, and do business in Boston, could leave early.

The Democrats felt in no hurry about the balloting, but wished to decide whether the town would continue the Road Commissioners another year, before they commenced voting. As early as 8:30, over 700 voters were present, and a line was formed from the ballot box clear around the hall, by those anxious to cast their votes and go about their business. Lengthy speeches were made by Messrs. John H. Doe, W. G. A. Patten, and others, and it was nearly 9 o'clock before the voting commenced.

The remainder of the day was very quiet, although the hall was well filled most of the time. The committee held but very little to do to keep order. In the afternoon a slight disturbance occurred in the street, front of the hall, and officer Faxon, who attempted to quell it, received, we learn, several punches, and was badly bruised. About the middle of the afternoon, Officer Faxon, assisted by two or three more, made a raid upon the saloon in Adams' block, formerly kept by H. P. Abbott, and more recently by P. S. McDowell, and seized a few bottles of liquor, which he carried away.

The temperance people carried the town by a large majority, it being the result of hard work. For ten days before election, nightly public meetings were held in different parts of the town, and earnest speakers urged all good citizens to vote No on the license question. Many of the wealthy citizens, and nearly all of the clergy of the town, took active part in the temperance cause, and the result was a triumph. A full result of the balloting, furnished us by our obliging Town Clerk, will be found on the next page.

Surprise Party.

At an early hour on Wednesday evening, a merry party of ladies and gentlemen assembled at the house of Mr. Alvin Rogers, on Quincy avenue, for the purpose of celebrating the birthday of a surprise party on Miss Lizette Willett, it being the anniversary of her birthday. After a preliminary introduction and arrangements had been made, the guests were seated at the table, and the party commenced. A large number of friends from North and South were present to enjoy the festivities.

Mrs. J. H. Sweetser, the better half of our Granite street provision dealer, is a first-class cook. We speak from knowledge as we have sampled one of her sweet potato pies. If any of our readers have not been as privileged as we, our advice is to visit Sweetser and get some potatoes, and ask for the receipt; as he is of an accommodating disposition, he will without doubt divulge the secret, and after making and baking, if they should be desirous of our comparing notes, just send us this office, and as they say "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," we will vouch for its quick disappearance as printers are great on "pi."

OFFICERS ELECTED. At a regular meeting of the Quincy Bicycle Club, held March 1st, the following officers were elected:—

President, Chas. Brooks.
Treasurer, Ben. Johnson, Jr.
Clerk, Arthur C. White.

First Lieutenant, Henry W. Tirrell.
Second Lieutenant, Chester S. Ford.
Club Committee, Fred W. Tirrell, Chester S. Ford and Wm. Underwood.

A VETERAN GONE. The announcement of the death of Mr. Samuel B. Pope, on Wednesday last, came very unexpectedly, as he was visiting friends and attending to his usual duties around his home up to Saturday last. His death was caused by pneumonia, and his sickness was of but two days' duration.

He passed away on Wednesday, mourned by an affectionate wife and loving children. Mr. Pope was a remarkably smart man of his age, and enjoyed life to the last.

For several years he was sexton of the Universalist Church, and held the position until about three years ago. On the 22d of February it was his wish, and it was granted him, to ring the bell which had just been placed in position in the tower of the new church, in commemoration of the event of fifty years ago, on which occasion he performed the same act. His funeral services took place this Saturday afternoon from his late residence.

BON-BON PARTY. We take great delight in announcing to the friends in general of the J. W. Hall Hook and Ladder Company, that the last dance of their series of assemblies, which will occur Wednesday evening, March 14, in Faxon Hall, is to be a bon-bon party. The arrangements have been placed in the hands of a competent committee, who will exert all energy to make this dance the capstone of the series, and thereby closing the course with a memorable party. The floor will be under full control of a courteous corps of aids, whose duty will be to make it pleasant for all who attend.

Mr. Walter B. Wilson is intending to enjoy a short vacation with his friend, Mr. George Hogan, in New York City.

The regular monthly session of the Quincy Board of Health will be held at the Town House, on Wednesday morning next, at 9 o'clock.

E. P. Howland, Esq., has our thanks for a very handsome calendar, issued by the American Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia.

L. Freeman Hall, superintendent of the schools in Dedham, has our thanks for a copy of the Annual Report of the School Committee.

The Oratorio Society rehearsal Wednesday evening, at the Town Hall, was well attended by the members, and the programme for Saturday evening rehearsed with orchestra.

Mr. Seth Spear has sold a house lot on Spear street, in the orchard nearly in front of his residence. Workmen have commenced excavating this week for a cellar, and we learn a new house is soon to be built for Mr. Hicks.

We are requested to give notice that copies of the pamphlet containing Mr. Adams' address, and the proceedings at the dedication of the Crane Memorial Hall in May last, can be obtained on application at the Public Librarian's office, in a new publication, no charge is made for them.

We learn with pleasure that Mr. Edwin E. Davis of Quincy, has finished his studies at the Boston Dental College, coming out as banner man, taking the prize in his class. A previous course in Tufts College well fits him for the duties of his profession. He intends to open an office in Quincy and also in Boston.

The first entertainment in the new vestry of the Universalist Church was held on Wednesday evening last. After partaking of a bountiful supper, the audience had the pleasure of listening to a fine entertainment of readings and singing. Mr. Denford, principal of the Weymouth High School, read several humorous pieces, which were much enjoyed. The readings were interspersed with singing by Miss Clara Newcomb, which was received with applause. A large number of friends from North and South were present to enjoy the festivities.

Mrs. J. H. Sweetser, the better half of our Granite street provision dealer, is a first-class cook. We speak from knowledge as we have sampled one of her sweet potato pies. If any of our readers have not been as privileged as we, our advice is to visit Sweetser and get some potatoes, and ask for the receipt; as he is of an accommodating disposition, he will without doubt divulge the secret, and after making and baking, if they should be desirous of our comparing notes, just send us this office, and as they say "the proof of the pudding is in the eating," we will vouch for its quick disappearance as printers are great on "pi."

OFFICERS ELECTED. At a regular meeting of the Quincy Bicycle Club, held March 1st, the following officers were elected:—

President, Chas. Brooks.
Treasurer, Ben. Johnson, Jr.
Clerk, Arthur C. White.

First Lieutenant, Henry W. Tirrell.
Club Committee, Fred W. Tirrell, Chester S. Ford and Wm. Underwood.

A VETERAN GONE. The announcement of the death of Mr. Samuel B. Pope, on Wednesday last, came very unexpectedly, as he was visiting friends and attending to his usual duties around his home up to Saturday last. His death was caused by pneumonia, and his sickness was of but two days' duration.

He passed away on Wednesday, mourned by an affectionate wife and loving children. Mr. Pope was a remarkably smart man of his age, and enjoyed life to the last.

For several years he was sexton of the Universalist Church, and held the position until about three years ago. On the 22d of February it was his wish, and it was granted him, to ring the bell which had just been placed in position in the tower of the new church, in commemoration of the event of fifty years ago, on which occasion he performed the same act. His funeral services took place this Saturday afternoon from his late residence.

BON-BON PARTY. We take great delight in announcing to the friends in general of the J. W. Hall Hook and Ladder Company, that the last dance of their series of assemblies, which will occur Wednesday evening, March 14, in Faxon Hall, is to be a bon-bon party. The arrangements have been placed in the hands of a competent committee, who will exert all energy to make this dance the capstone of the series, and thereby closing the course with a memorable party. The floor will be under full control of a courteous corps of aids, whose duty will be to make it pleasant for all who attend.

A Georgia ex-lavie owns his old master's estate of fifteen hundred acres. He is worth about $30,000. He can borrow all the money he wants on his simple note of hand. After the war, when the family had lost their money, the negro began by buying fifty acres, and finally has obtained the whole property.

Quincy Point Items.

The adjourned parish meeting was held in the C. U. Church last Saturday evening and was well attended. The committee appointed at the last meeting to see if the new church could be secured for the benefit of the new society, reported that most of the pew holders interviewed had expressed a willingness to surrender their pews. After appointing a committee to report further information and report as quickly as possible, the meeting adjourned. Tuesday evening the members of the church held a meeting and voted to name the new organization the Washington Street Congregational Church, an appropriate exercises for Easter are in course of preparation. A concert rehearsal was held Thursday evening.

Monday evening the Culture Engine Company held its monthly meeting; a fine supper was the feature of the occasion.

Sunday evening the C. U. Church was filled with people who came to hear the temperance addresses by Messrs. Dewhurst and Smith. Through the kindness of the church, the people were called together half an hour too early, but the chairman Mr. Walton Hall and the choir entertained them until the arrival of the speakers. The affair was quite a success.

The singing school, held at the church, was well attended. The re-election of Mr. Alfred Sampson to the school committee and Warren Hayes as constant gives universal satisfaction and Mr. Marcus E. Wright will make a first-class class.

The singing school recently organized and placed under the leadership of Mr. Heyward, met Tuesday evening at the Washington school-house.

We advise the Q. P. G. H. P. C. to be getting their musical (P) instruments ready.

"Arrival at the Point"—a daughter to Mr. Joseph W. and Mrs. Hattie F. Linnell.

To-morrow evening Rev. J. L. Harris will deliver a sermon upon the "Life and Character of Lot." Services will commence at 7 o'clock.

Mr. Seth Spear has sold a house lot on Spear street, in the orchard nearly in front of his residence. Workmen have commenced excavating this week for a cellar, and we learn a new house is soon to be built for Mr. Hicks.

Town Meeting Items.

Braintree voted to have a new almshouse.

Mr. Charles Breck, of Milton, was elected Town Treasurer for the thirty-eight year.

The tax collector in Braintree is to receive 7-10 mills on $1.

Milton voted $400 for the East Milton reading room.

The vote in Quincy was more than 2 to 1 against granting licenses.

Milton voted $500 for free text books for her schools.

A lady was elected on the School Committee board in Braintree.

East Weymouth is to have a new steam engine.

Braintree has decided to have Road Commissioners.

Hingham appropriated $1000, and chose a committee to prepare a history of the town.

The compensation for the tax collector in Dedham is 1 per cent. Milford eight mills on a dollar.

The following towns in close proximity—Hingham, Weymouth, Braintree, Quincy, Milton and Hyde Park—voted to grant liquor licenses.

Brookline and Dedham are to try licensing another year.

Weymouth intends to keep order and chose thirty-five constables.

There were 1670 votes cast in Quincy on Monday.

District Court, Quincy.

The business before the District Court is very dull. Only a few cases have been tried this week.

Abraham Mead, of Braintree, for being a common drunkard, was discharged.

Patrick Mooney, of Quincy, for a second drunk. Fined $5 and costs.

"EMOTIONAL INSANITY."—The California legislature has passed an "emotional insanity" bill, which provides that a murderer who enters a plea of insanity shall first be examined for craziness alone, without regard to his crime; and if the court finds him sane, he shall be tried for murder, the false plea entering as an "aggravation of the offense." But if the plea of insanity is sustained, the defendant shall be sent to a mad-house by the court and never removed unless his sanity is proven. Then he shall be taken away and tried on the original charge. The "emotional murderer" is common on the Pacific slope, and this bill is calculated to discourage him.

"ON THE WING." This is the title of a neat little book written by one of Quincy's High School graduates, Mrs. Mary E. (McGraw) wife of Dr. J. McGraw, of Boston. It is a collection of interesting and readable book, written in an easy off-hand style, portraying the pleasures enjoyed on a trip to California with the Raymond excursionists. Her description of the country through which she traveled, and the manner in which she was taken care of, is full of interest; while sensations experienced in rounding the sharp curves on the mountains or crossing over deep ravines on a trestle-bridge, are quite exciting and thrilling. The book is handsomely printed, and those of our readers who are about to take this delightful trip will find much information in this little work.

Wagner was a head shorter than "Uncle George," black with "stockings," fine face at neck and wrist. The rooms the family used were never cleaned or dusted while they were at home. A scene from one of his operas is frescoed on the front of his house in Baireuth, in which his wife's face is seen. His object in life was to make music itself dramatic.

Another noted man has gone hence, in the person of Alexander H. Stephens, Governor of Georgia, ex-member of Congress and ex-Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, who died at midnight on Saturday. He was Georgia's greatest man, and had been for a generation or more.

Congress has defeated the bill for very largely reducing the taxes of the internal revenue system, and the people must continue to bear the oppressive and unjust burden, and keep paying a tax on matches, bank checks, etc., and maintain a valuable band of officials, often times obnoxious and supercilious in the administering of their office. —Milford Journal.

There is a talk among several gentlemen interested, of starting the enterprise of building a horse railroad to extend from Point Allerton along Nantasket Beach, up Jerusalem Road to the Black Rock House, crossing the beach at Queen Hill and back to the point of starting.

A gentleman living in North Andover has a cat which has slept on a cow's back in the barn every night for nearly three years. The cat at first tried several cows, but none of them seemed pleased with the arrangement, until she finally found the amiable quadruped that seems to like the state of affairs immensely.

A tree cut at a few weeks ago in Hingham, Mass., was found to be twenty-six feet in circumference. It took six men, working constantly, half a day to fell it.

Green peas five inches high are exciting great expectation in Raleigh, N. C.

The plaintiff in an Indiana breach of promise suit is a widow of thirty-four and the defendant a boy of eighteen.

The Duchess of Sutherland, the Duchess of Westminster, Lady Mount Temple, the Countess Brownlow and the Countess of Eglar, all wear the temperance blue ribbon.

Plovers have commenced for Spring planting in some parts of Louisiana.

Peach trees were in bloom at Columbia, S. C., almost three weeks ago.

The Canadian port of Sarnia, shipped 1,800,000 eggs to New York in one week.

Thousands of acres of public land in Texas are changing owners at fifty cents per acre.

Near Jacksonville, Texas, one man lost 500 out of a flock of 700 sheep, from the cold weather.

On her nineteenth birthday, Mrs. E. A. Jewett, of Georgetown, Mass., coasted down hill on a hand-carred rail train, faster than that of a railway train.

Nearly 200,000 acres of Mississippi Delta land are now owned by the Government of Georgia. It is the richest and perhaps the most unhealthy land in the world.

Snow fell eleven successive Sundays at Bar Harbor, Me.

Wollaston Heights.

Half a loaf may be better than no bread for the philosopher, but not for Wollaston. One hundred per cent. is his standard and nothing less suits.

The vote of Wollaston on the negative side of the license question, shows that she can be relied upon in emergencies.

Dr. Wilson and citizen King proved to us that the cause of temperance cannot slumber unless they do, yet coals are not more abundant in Newcastle than cold water patriots in Wollaston.

The zeal manifested by the members of the "Wollaston Oratorio Society" who will sing in the town hall Saturday evening, under the leadership of Mr. Albee, shows that nothing short of A. 1. will be satisfactory. Do not fail to hear Mr. King, Wollaston's favorite tenor.

The treasurer of "Our Boys," in order to emulate the zeal of the members of the K of H, "set them up" to sell three hundred tickets in one week, little dreaming of its accomplishment. Through the efforts of "Our Boys," three hundred and fifty tickets have been exchanged for cash. The members will not importune citizens to purchase tickets for their entertainment, but simply give a nuisance, or sons of prophets, nor distant relatives even of either Venor or Wiggins, they are not prognosticate, but politely and briefly fear the 16th and 17th may be chilly to the ticketless.

"For the Patriot."

What we understand the "Dole Odorous Fertilizer Company" have commenced active operations at their works, at Atlantic, and average about six dead horses per week. In order for to attract attention as they pass through the streets of Wollaston, these bodies are covered with manure, so as to have the appearance of a load of manure. It is about time that some decided action should be taken in regard to this matter, or we shall have under our noses a nuisance, or sons of prophets, nor distant relatives even of either Venor or Wiggins, they are not prognosticate, but politely and briefly fear the 16th and 17th may be chilly to the ticketless.

TOWN ME

LONG SE

Large Appro

$100,000

The adjourned annual was held on Tuesday. A very large attendance including three ladies. Adams was Moderator with Mrs. Mendenhall as his second. A very important subject meeting and considerable sion. The assembly was over at 1.10 and dismissed soon as order was restored. F. Adams offered the motion —

That no motion to vote shall be in order unless there shall give notice in order to do, before the passed from the cons article under which the taking.

That debate on the motion, pending the doubtful vote.

Mr. James H. Shalew as an amendment accepted by Mr. Adams. That during the discussion it shall be in order, rightfully in paffor, to move that the subject be put. Such a motion committed to the meeting and if carried by a two-thirds question shall be out further debate.

Mr. George Cahill had would not prevail. He

Mr. Slade said it was a fair dividing line between the majority and the minority could bring close. He claimed that the majority of the house could move he had the right to debate to a close.

Mr. Cahill said that he in choking off debate by allowing every man to be heard to say (applause).

Mr. Adams moved the clauses in the motions be read by the majority which was carried 41. The motions made by Adams and Slade were then read.

Mr. Faxon gave notice further on desire to move Mr. Slade's amendment.

The Quincy Patriot.
SATURDAY, MAR. 31, 1883.
For the Patriot.
To E. A. S.
What shall I say to you tonight
Of friends who have I should Save as I hold it in the light
Of this lamp of memory?
H. A. BENDIS.

Dear friend, although I am not
And seems your footsteps stray.
Forget not one that's doomed to tread
The path of duty and of prayer.
While you by friends surrounded,
And on life's journey tread,
Remember those who are no more,
And those who are no more.

And friend, though I am not
And seems your footsteps stray.
Forget not one that's doomed to tread
The path of duty and of prayer.
While you by friends surrounded,
And on life's journey tread,
Remember those who are no more,
And those who are no more.

And friend, though I am not
And seems your footsteps stray.
Forget not one that's doomed to tread
The path of duty and of prayer.
While you by friends surrounded,
And on life's journey tread,
Remember those who are no more,
And those who are no more.

And friend, though I am not
And seems your footsteps stray.
Forget not one that's doomed to tread
The path of duty and of prayer.
While you by friends surrounded,
And on life's journey tread,
Remember those who are no more,
And those who are no more.

And friend, though I am not
And seems your footsteps stray.
Forget not one that's doomed to tread
The path of duty and of prayer.
While you by friends surrounded,
